DRAMATIC LAUSANNE DEVELOPMENTS MOOTED

WARNING TO AMERICA

JAPANESE GREET AMBASSADOR

ASIA EXPANSION

VISCOUNT ISHII'S

TOKYO, June 22.

A remarkable speech by Viscount Ishii caused a profound impression at a banquet last night to the new United States Ambassador to Japan, Mr. Grew.

Japan's relations with the United States and the forecasts of an inevitable war between the countries was dwelt upon by the speakers, and Viscount Ishii, pooh-poohing the idea of war between Japan and America, hinted that the United States must not try to defeat Japan's objects in Manchuria.

He said that Japan would be foolish if they attempted to interfere in the Western hemisphere, as much as to say that the United States would be foolish if she interfered in Asia.

The occasion was the banquet of welcome to Mr. Grew given by the Japanese-American Society in Tokyo, those present including Prince Tokugawa, Admiral Viscount Saito and Viscount Ishii.

"REMOTE" CONTINGENCIES.

Viscount Ishii delivered the address of welcome and referring to the rumours of possible war between the two countries, said he considered that this was only possible in two highly improbable contingencies:

(1) If Japan was foolish enough to interfere unduly in the Western hemisphere;

(2) If the United States attempted to dominate the Asiatic Continent, preventing Japan from pacific and natural expansion in this part of the world.

He was convinced, however, he said, that America's only concern in the Orient was the maintenance of peace and respect for Treaties.

ATLANTIC SPEED RECORD

Empress of Britain's Brilliant Run

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, June 21.
All existing speed records on the run from Canada to Cherbourg were broken when the giant Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Britain, steamed into the French port to-day.

The magnificent ship had crossed from Father Point, Quebec to Cherbourg in 4 days, 7 hours, 58 minutes, thereby beating its own previous record for the Atlantic crossing by sixty-two minutes.

STOP PRESS.

New York, June 21.

In the contest for the world's heavyweight championship to-night, Jack Sharkey, the American challenger, defeated Max Schmeling, the German holder, on points, over fifteen rounds.—Reuter.

ANGLO-AMERICAN AGREEMENT

IMPORTANT RESULTS
HOURLY EXPECTED

PIERCING THE VEIL OF SECRECY

BEHIND A VEIL OF SECRECY AT LAUSANNE AND GENEVA, AN IMMENSE EFFORT IS BEING MADE TO BRING THE MAJOR PROBLEMS NOW CONFRONTING WORLD STATESMEN TO A SATISFACTORY SOLUTION AND IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS ARE HOURLY EXPECTED.

Right in the centre of things is Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose remarkable speech at the opening of the Conference, and whose powerful lead in the proposal to wipe the war debts slate clean, have inspired the United States to make definite proposals, linking a revision of war debt agreements with a real disarmament.

AMERICAN PROPOSALS SUPPORTED

M. Herriot and Mr. Hugh Gibson, who has been authorised to discuss vital proposals, were unable, it is believed, to find a common basis, but there is complete unanimity between Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Gibson as the result of private conversation at Onchi, near Lausanne, of the American scheme.

DEFINITE UNDERSTANDING

It is hoped that the reaching of a definite Anglo-American understanding, powerfully supported by Italy and Germany, in her own interests, will lead to important decisions in the course of the day. It is France that has to be reconciled to acceptance of the proffered solution of the most urgent problems.

Private conversations between the leading delegates again occupied the time and attention of world statesmen to-day, both at Geneva and at Lausanne.

Close secrecy is being observed in official quarters regarding the trend of these talks, but it is known that the statesmen consider that at the present stage they constitute the best method of reaching a solution of the problems with which they are confronted.

News-paper correspondents attach particular importance to the meeting held late last night between M. Herriot and Mr. Paul Boncour on the one side and Mr. Hugh Gibson, the United States representative at the Disarmament Conference on the other.

LONG CONFERENCES.

Mr. MacDonald and M. Herriot have had long conferences during the day and this afternoon, Mr. Gibson and Mr. Norman Davis, of the American delegation, paid a visit to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon at Lausanne, to continue previous conversations relating to disarmament.

Afterwards Sir John Simon returned with the Americans to Geneva.—Reuter and British Wireless.

CHOLERA DANGER

SIR HENRY POLLOCK'S QUESTIONS

Questions concerning measures for preventing the spread of cholera to Hongkong from Canton are to be asked by the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock K.C., at to-morrow's meeting of the Legislative Council.

Sir Henry's questions are as follows:
1. What measures do you recommend should be adopted by the Government for the prevention of the spread of cholera from Canton to Hongkong?
2. Is there a sufficiency, in this Colony, of (i) anti-cholera serum, (ii) other anti-cholera remedies and medicines? If not, what steps do you recommend should be taken by the Government for remedying such deficiencies, if any?

WARNING ISSUED.

The Sanitary Department to-day issues a warning to the public of the possibility of contracting cholera from eating uncooked vegetables and fruit.

Found in possession of po po tickets to the value of $1,000, a Chinese woman was fined $1,000 before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning. It was stated that the defendant was arrested on information.

IAN COLLINS BEATS COCHET

Ian Collins, the brilliant Scottish tennis player, who caused a sensation at Wimbledon yesterday by beating Cochet, Collins is regarded as essentially a doubles player, a maker of openings for his partner to provide a spectacular coup de grace.

RUNS COME FREELY

THIRTEEN THREE-FIGURES SCORES

HOBBS, SUTCLIFFE
AND SANDHAM

These are days of delightfully free scoring cricket at Home. In a glorious spell of weather, bowlers are being heavily punished, thirteen more centuries having been added to the season's total in the past three days.

The Test Trial was a triumph for the old school. Hammond, K.S. Duleepsinhji, Sutcliffe (96 and 110 not out) and Woolley demonstrated their batting powers; even Larwood hit up a valuable 67 when the North were badly up against it; while Tate, in two innings, took 7 wickets. The match was drawn, but except for the efforts of Sutcliffe and Larwood, the North were badly outplayed.

NAWAB OF WORCESTER.

The Nawab of Pataudi played for Worcester against the All-India team and scored 83 out of 294 in their first innings. Worcester were defeated by three wickets.

Hobbs compiled his third century in successive innings and assisted Sandham in putting on 204 runs for the first wicket against Somerset at Taunton. Sandham going on to score 215. Somerset were saved from the peril of an innings defeat by R. A. Ingle, chiefly. He scored a capital hundred.

CAPTAIN'S INNINGS.

Another brilliant captain's innings was played by M.J. Turnbull, of Glamorgan. Centuries by Croom and Santall enabled Warwick to declare with 463 on the board and five wickets down. Glamorgan, replying with 194, were forced to follow on, but Turnbull held his end up splendidly and steadily supported the total was carried to 366 for 5 wickets, defeat being easily staved off. Over a thousand runs were scored for 20 wickets in this match.

The Essex-Oxford match produced nearly 1,200 in three days, and over a thousand runs were obtained in four other games. Details on Sports Page.

Fines of $2 each were imposed on two Chinese who were charged before Mr. Fraser, at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning, with being on the Children's Playground in Chatham Road. Inspector Elstone, who prosecuted, said the defendants were not have been charged if they were not employed as cooks in houses opposite the playground, and should have known better.

THE FIRST WIMBLEDON SENSATION

FRENCH CHAMPION
OUTPLAYED

MISS STAMMERS
GOES AHEAD

GREAT WIN OVER
MRS. HARPER

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, June 21.

The Wimbledon crowd was provided with its first sensation to-day when Henri Cochet, the French champion, generally acknowledged as the world's finest singles player was eliminated in the second round.

His conqueror was Ian Collins, who played brilliantly, to take the match by three sets to one, although he is not been regarded at all seriously as a singles player, his high reputation being built up on his brilliance in doubles play. Collins to-day defeated Cochet after losing a love set. The young Scot began splendidly, winning the first set at 6-2, and he made it two sets to love after a terrific fourteen-game duel.

BETTER STRATEGIST!

In the third set, Cochet dominated the play and won six-love, but Collins again proved his master in the fourth. Cochet suffered much the same fate in the Wimbledon championships a year ago, being eliminated in an early round by Nigel Sharpe. Excuses were made for him on that occasion in that he had only just recovered from an illness.

To-day, no excuse could have been advanced. He was beaten by a much better strategist, of all things, on the day's play. Collins won chiefly through his magnificent service, and he produced a type of stroke which continually prevented Cochet from employing the devastating rising ball drive which made him world famous.

Collins hit as hard as ever he has been seen to hit, with splendid accuracy from the back of the court, and every now and again, his service, with first and second deliveries of the same fierce pace, won a quick game. His fine angled cross-court returns and side-line strokes were touched with delicacy, and it will be difficult on this form to keep him out of the Davis Cup, with Dr. J. C. Gregory as his partner.

Gregory and Collins were, at one time, England's doubles pair for the Davis Cup and they have never lost a game in the competition. They did not play last year, Hughes and Perry being preferred. It has been suggested that Hughes and Perry should play Gregory and Collins with a view to deciding which is the better pair. The second thrill of the day at Wimbledon was provided by Miss Henri Cochet, fresh from his French championship victory suffered his fate of last season at Wimbledon, being eliminated in the second round by Ian Collins.

ENGLAND'S TEST TEAM

D. R. JARDINE AS SKIPPER

ATTACK LIMITED

London, June 21.
D. R. Jardine, the Surrey skipper, has been chosen to captain England in Saturday's Test Match against All-India. The eleven, in which there are elements of surprise on account of omissions, has been selected as follows:

D. R. Jardine (Surrey), captain;
F. R. Brown (Surrey),
R. W. V. Robins (Middlesex), Sutcliffe (Yorkshire),
Holmes (Yorkshire),
Paynter (Lancashire), Veece (Nottingham),
Bones (Yorkshire),
Ames (Kent),
Hammond (Gloucestershire), Woolley (Kent).

Extremely powerful in batting, the side does not appear to be particularly strong in attack and the absence of Larwood, if not of Tate, will cause some comment. Doubtless, the preference given to Bones over Larwood is experimental.

Holmes will doubtless feel gratified that the selectors have considered him on his merits, at long last, and have given him an opportunity of revealing his powers as an opening batsman with his famous team colleague in a representative game.

Frank Woolley refuses to permit himself to be overlooked even after having celebrated his 45th birthday a month ago.—Reuter.

KING'S BIRTHDAY HONOURS

HIS MAJESTY HOLDS INVESTITURE

London, June 21.
H. M. the King this morning held a full dress investiture at Buckingham Palace, when he conferred on more than a hundred recipients the decorations given them in the last Birthday Honours List.—British Wireless.

Kathleen Stammers, the extremely youthful British hope, who has suddenly shot to the front rank of British lady players, without succeeding in establishing for herself a place in the Wightman Cup team.

To-day, she caused a considerable surprise by defeating the American challenger, Mrs. L. A. Harper, by two sets to one after losing the first rather badly. She recovered brilliantly and earned a well-deserved victory.

The merit of the performance may be gauged from the fact that Mrs. L. A. Harper was ranked No. 3, to Mrs. Wills-Moody and Miss Jacobs in the (Continued on Page 7.)

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

One of the most peculiar hands seen at the bridge table is given below. The only table to make the grand slam was the one that bid it in No Trump and it is interesting to note that the hand holding the three ace King combinations took only one trick.

♠ J-10-9-3	♠ 7-6-2
♥ Q-J-10-9-5-4	♥ Q-J
♦ 7	♦ 10-4
♣ A-K	♣ 9-7-6-3-2
♠ 8-5-4	♠ 6
♥ 8-7-3-2	♥ 10-4
♦ None	♦ 9-7-6-3-2
♣ 10-8-5-4	♣ 3-2

The Bidding.

South, not having over three losing cards, was justified in making a forcing two diamond bid. This forcing bid places an obligation upon both partners to keep the bidding open until a game going contract is arrived at. West passed and North gave a positive response of two hearts. South does not have to hurry the bidding as he knows that it will be kept open until game is arrived at, so bids three diamonds.

North then bid three hearts. South's next bid was seven hearts. North after carefully considering the hand, knew that South must hold the ace and king of hearts and that his losing cards, if any, were in the diamond suit. North felt quite confident that if seven hearts can be made, seven No Trump can also, and therefore bid seven No Trump.

The Play.

East opened the three of clubs. It now looks as though the only chance the declarer has to make his grand slam in No Trump is to get a break in diamond, but the declarer decided that there were two ways that he might make the hand. First, that his seven hearts to the queen Jack ten nine would pick up the outstanding hearts, and if this did not work he would then have to look to a diamond break. Therefore the declarer's play was the king of hearts from dummy. West, playing the ten of clubs and the declarer won the trick with the king of hearts immediately returning the ace of hearts from dummy. Now the queen of hearts was led by the declarer and a small diamond discarded from dummy.

Declarer now knew that the hearts would break and led the jack of hearts. East discarding a club and the declarer discarding the queen of spades from dummy. Two more rounds of hearts were taken by the declarer, a club and a spade being discarded by East and the ace and king of spades being discarded by the dummy. The declarer then tried for a spade break and led the jack of spades, discarding a small diamond from the dummy. The nine of spades picked up the last spade from the opponents. The declarer then cashed his good spade, the four and five of hearts and then led the seven of diamonds to the dummy's ace, the only trick dummy won being the ace of diamonds and the declarer, by cleverly unblocking, had made his contract of seven No Trump.

VILLAGE ROAD MURDER

WITNESS CLOSELY
EXAMINED

MONEY PRESENTS

The Police Court proceedings continued yesterday, before Mr. Wynne-Jones, in which Cheng Kwok-yau is charged with instigating the murder of George Fung in Village Road on the night of March 24. There was a lengthy cross-examination of the witness Lau Mo-Kwong, who was with accused on the fateful night.

Addressing Lau Mo-kwong, Mr. Hall Brutton asked—Now, at the Pauline Dancing Academy, did you dance?—All four of us did, replied witness.

Who purchased the tickets?—I paid the tickets for the first time when I was sent out for them by Cheng.

How many tickets did you buy?—Ten.

And were all these tickets used?—Yes.

Who purchased them the second time?—Zimmern; he was also told by the accused to buy them.

The same number of tickets?—Yes.

And they were used too?—I don't know, as I was not in charge of the tickets. I didn't know how many were left.

You told us that you went out to West Point for gambling. When was this arranged whilst you were in the Pauline Dancing Academy?—Yes.

Was it also in the Dancing Academy that Cheng said he wanted to go down to his house?—Yes, he did, and he also mentioned that on the point of leaving the Pauline Dancing Academy.

For what purpose?—He didn't say at first why he went back to the house, but on the point of leaving the Academy, he said he was going back to his house to get money.

From there you told us you went to Stanley Street to get the car?—Yes, it was an Austin Seven, No. 4 being the registered number of the car.

Cheng Quite Normal.

Was there any difficulty in starting the car?—Yes. We couldn't get the car started, and it was necessary to use the crank. At last, Cheng told Zimmern to crank the car.

And defendant told Zimmern to use the crank?—Zimmern didn't know how to crank the car, but was able to do so after being taught by the accused.

Did that take any time?—About three minutes.

When you got to Cheng's house down by Happy Valley, was the engine stopped whilst you were waiting, or was it running?—I didn't notice, but I think the engine was still running.

You told us yesterday that when you got to the Yeung Wo Nursing Home, you saw cars and a crowd of persons. Were they outside the Yeung Wo Nursing Home?—They were not far from the Nursing Home. It was dark at the time and I could not see clearly.

And it was you who said, "I wonder what is the matter," wasn't it?—I did say so.

And you told us that Cheng's reply to that was it was probably a motor accident, wasn't it?—Yes.

And, now, on seeing the crowd, did Cheng drive at the same speed?—Yes.

Didn't accelerate in any way?—No, just driving at the ordinary speed.

I am going to put to you what Zimmern said in his evidence. This is what he says Cheng said to him. "You want me to walk on the road of death."—I didn't hear that.

If that had been said, could you have heard it?—I could have.

Now Cheng appeared to be nothing out of the ordinary when he drove along the road from his house?—In my opinion, he seemed to be normal.

As usual?—Yes.

That applies also to the ride

Are Children an Asset or a Liability?

Do you obtain a greater happiness out of life through them or do you feel they are a source of worry and expense? If they are always well and happy no doubt the former will be the case, but if they are always ailing then their sufferings are yours also.

Cheng's Money.

I understand Cheng gave you on this occasion $11 altogether on the drive back?—Yes.

Any reason for his giving you that?—Occasionally he gave me money.

Occasionally before that he gave you money?—Yes.

So it was not an unusual proceeding on his part to give you money?—Not unusual.

Can you remember when you first saw the Police about this matter with reference to the statement you made?—I remember a week after this affair. It was on a Friday when I came up to the Central Police Station.

How did you come up?—A detective went to the South China Athletic Association, and he found me there and asked me to come up.

Did you know the detective, or the detective know you?—On that morning, this detective here, with Mr. Zimmern, went to the South China Athletic Association to look for me. I was questioned by them, and later I was sent for by the detective.

You were questioned at the South China Athletic Association and later sent for?—Yes.

You were released that same day?—Yes.

You were sent for again?—Yes, on the next day, Saturday.

Same statement or same questions?—Yes.

You gave the same statement?—It was a little different, including certain things which I may have forgotten to say the previous day.

Omissions.

Did you omit anything on the third occasion?—A great deal, I could not remember what it was.

There were omissions, quite natural. Well, were you detained?—I was detained.

Witness explained that although sent for at 3 p.m. the questioning did not begin until five, and he was detained at seven, when the questioning had terminated for that day.

Mr. Brutton: Well, did you finish your statement at 7?—Oh no. I had not finished my statement at 7 p.m.

Well, what you have told us yesterday and to-day didn't take two hours to tell, you know, I was asked in detail and at intervals.

Will you tell us why you were detained then?—Because I was accused of not having told the whole story. I had forgotten about

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Susan Carey finishes business school and secures a job as secretary to Ernest Heath, architect. Jack Waring, disreputable, tries to flirt with her but is rebuffed. Ben Lampman, a young man, takes Susan to a party but she does not like his friends. Susan realizes she cares deeply for Ben. Ben, a young millionaire, she met at her new school. At much one day Ben is about to tell her something important when Denise Arkwright, a society girl, interrupts. Shortly afterward he sails for Europe. Susan's Aunt Jessie, with whom she lives, departs for a visit. Susan is lonely and goes for a drive with Waring. He kisses her and she resolves never to go out with him again. Ray Heath, a young man, employed in the office across the hall, gives Susan some advice about being a good sport.

CHAPTER XVI

It was Saturday afternoon during the third week of Aunt Jessie's absence. Susan had received a wire only that morning saying her aunt would return on the seven o'clock train. Now, at one o'clock, the long afternoon yawned before her. Is there anything in all the world so dreary as a half holiday spent alone? The world seems full of chattering, noisy groups and couples. Young men with tennis racquets, girls in thin white, elderly men with golf bags, mothers with children bound for the beaches.

Susan couldn't decide quite what to do with herself. She wandered down to Michigan avenue, decided against lunching alone, and finally managed to struggle to the top of a north bound bus. She would buy some sandwiches, she decided, and get off the bus in Lincoln Park and picnic all by herself. That would be better than going home to an empty house.

It was such a day as occasionally comes to Chicago in August, a day divinely blue, superbly cool. The sun was warm and yet already, so early as this, there was a hint of autumn's crispness in the air. Susan took off her hat and let the lake breezes ruffle her hair into little ringlets. She felt perfectly happy, at peace with the world. It was luxury, just to be alone on such a day as this. She felt superior to the noisy groups she had envied half an hour before. While they were wearing themselves out on tennis courts or golf links she, Susan Carey, would enjoy the glory of the day.

The bus was bowling along through the green park now. There were glimpses of the lake through the trees and to the west you could see the roof of the refectory. Susan decided to alight. As she proceeded down the aisle, swaying and clutching at the backs of seats to steady herself, she heard her name called.

"Hello, Miss Carey." The bus swayed to a stop and she turned around to catch the eye of Ben Lampman.

"I'm getting off here," she said wildly and unnecessarily, since her purpose was apparent. She flung herself down the stairs, the young man at her heels.

"I didn't mean—you needn't have bothered—I'm terribly sorry you—"

He smiled at her. "I wasn't going any place" in particular. "Thought I might as well get off here. It's a swell day."

She agreed although the description seemed to her highly inadequate.

"Where are you bound for?" Susan resigned herself to the inevitable. After all, she might as well be pleasant to this young man. Rose said he was lonely. He had no relatives in town and was "the queer moody sort who doesn't make friends easily."

"I was going to get some food and have a picnic by myself," she said. "Do you want to come along?"

His lean, dark face lighted up. "That would be great," he said. "Look, there's the Casino, right over there. We can pick up some sandwiches. Gosh, I wish I'd known. I'd have brought my thermos."

"Well, we can get ginger ale," Susan said comfortingly. What a strange young man he was. For a moment or two he seemed inconceivable over the absence of his thermos. Susan repeated a little impatiently, "It doesn't matter at all."

But the moment passed and soon they were laughing and talking like old friends. They sat on a little hillock near the lagoon. Ben spread out newspapers so that Susan's pink shantung frock should remain innocent of grass stain. Over the shared sandwiches and the ginger ale they came to a friendlier understanding of each other.

"Why, he's not half bad, really," the girl thought in surprise. The boy said to himself, "Lord, but she's prettier than I remembered and not as standoffish."

Susan brushed the crumbs from her skirt and Ben made a parcel of the debris which he deposited in one of those huge baskets park officials have disposed on tree trunks for the benefit of tidy citizens.

"Let's go for a row," he proposed.

"I didn't know you could," Susan said.

"Sure. You get the boats over on that side," he pointed.

It was pleasant to drift along on the green water, to dabble your hands and sit back luxuriously as a young man rowed. Susan wondered if Cleopatra had felt like this as she floated down the Nile. She smiled at the ridiculous thought and looked up to find Ben's eyes fixed upon her.

"This is nice," she said confusedly. He nodded. He had taken his coat off and for the first time she noticed how broad his shoulders were under the thin white shirt. A farm boy—wasn't that what Rose had said? Well, he didn't look much like a farm boy now. He looked more like a young poet or the musician he really was.

Mr. Heath wouldn't approve of Ben the girl decided. She flushed, wondering why it mattered. Mr. Heath would have thought Ben rangy and rather unkempt, although his linen was spotless and his shabby suit well brushed. All the young men who came to see

If it's true that screen stars set styles for a large part of the feminine population, then your girl friend may eye you through a monacle next time you call. For this is how Fraulein Hilde Heinrich, the German actress, appears on the streets.

Mr. Heath were clipped, assured, and perfectly turned out. Most of them had been to Harvard or Yale or Princeton. They knew the right people and belonged to the right clubs. Ben would never do either of those things.

They rounded the little turn and started to go back toward the landing. Susan, noticing with alarm the lengthening shadows, asked Ben the time.

"Don't you worry. I'll get you back with minutes to spare," he assured her.

They were in the shadow of a willow now. The light was curious and unreal and for no good reason Susan's heart began to pound. Perhaps it was something in the way the young man looked at her as he rested on his oars.

She managed a smile. "All right, go ahead."

He stumbled over the words but they sounded astonishingly clear. "I want to—I want to ask you to marry me."

Susan gasped. She felt as if a

"The Perfect Alibi."

Crowds will no doubt flock to the Queen's Theatre for their share of
the thrills and electrifying suspense
occupying the screen in the latest film shocker, "The Perfect Alibi."
This famous play, adapted and produced in England by Basil Dean for Associated Radio Pictures (RKO-Radio Pictures), ran for two seasons on Broadway as a stage success. On the screen it is said to be meeting with even greater acclaim. It tells the dramatic story of two criminals bent on vengeance against the man who convicted them twenty-five years before. Ingratating themselves into his home and confidence, and trading on the fact that he had failed and they had succeeded, they murder him and cover their tracks with a perfectly manufactured alibi. Each man's story hinges on the movements and whereabouts of the other at the time of the crime.

Although the audience is always aware of the identity of the murderers, even seen the crime committed, suspense is built to fever pitch by the extraordinary manipulation of the plot by the discovery and arrest of the criminals. How it is done is the big thing in "The Perfect Alibi," and audiences seem to relish the appeal
to the mind which the film offers.

But "The Perfect Alibi" has more
action than mental gymnastics, according to reports. And there are some excellent players in it, including
C. Aubrey Smith, Warwick Ward,
Dorothy Boyd and Robert Lorraine.

"The Magnificent Lie."

Between scenes on the Ruth Chat-
terton set at the Paramount Hollywood studio, Stuart Erwin was engaged in a discussion on the art of lying.
"There are lies and lies," said the actor, "and the minor degrees of prevarication and work up to the flagrant form. Now, there's the teenieweenie lie, just a step below the tiny lie. Everybody can qualify in that class. Then comes the little lie with "white," and use it daily. Fathers, mothers and sweethearts have popularized this form.

"The ordinary big lie and the crazy lie, I'd rank next. They're very popular with golfers and fishermen."
"How about the darn and the dirty lie?" interposed San Hardy.

"It was coming to those two," explained Erwin. "They fit most poker players when they arrive home and tell their wives about their winnings
and losses."

"Then there's the huge lie, the gigantic lie, the tremendous lie, the
colossal lie."

At that moment Miss Chatterton
walked on to the set and Director
Boyd told Erwin to proceed rehearsal for the next scene in "The Magnifcent Lie," her new starring picture in which Edwin, Ralph Bellamy and
other talented scene players will be seen at the King's Theatre next Sunday.

CINEMA SCREENING.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

It is always hopeless when a girl lives all her love on one man and receives none in return? Custom decides that a woman shall be the pursued one. In view of this should she retire and suffer in silence or fight with all her feminine wiles for
the possession of the one she feels
to be her man?

This situation forms the basis of the story of "She Couldn't Say No,"
the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production starring Winnie Lighter and Chester Morris, which is coming to the Queen's Theatre on Friday. The famous Winnie is shown as an entertainer in a night club, desperately in love with Jerry, the former racketeer
who has become her manager. But Jerry (played by Chester Morris) is decidedly not interested. Winnie tells Jerry of her great love for him
and begs him to give up the society girl who, Winnie feels, is interested in him merely because he is entirely different from the men she has been accustomed to meeting. He insists upon proclaiming his love for the other girl, and Winnie, after a futile
fight, leaves the city broken hearted.
Months later Jerry's eyes are opened
but it is too late.

"She Couldn't Say No" is not just a song and dance film. It is filled with absorbing drama. The supporting cast includes Sally Eilers, Johnny
Arthur and Tully Marshall. Lloyd
Bacon directed and the screen play
was written by Robert Lord and Arthur Caesar. It is an adaptation of Benjamin M. Kaye's play of the same name.

"24 Hours"

Minor Watson is having a difficult time convincing Hollywood that he did not come from New York for the purpose of trying to steal the screen
aureole of Jackie Coogan, Jackie Cooper, Milti Green, Junior Durkin,
Jackie Seal and other juveniles.
Watson, one of Broadway's best-known actors, with recent plays such
as "It's a Wise Child," "This Thing Called Love," "Jockey King," and
"These Modern Women" to his credit,
is about six feet tall, weighs 170
pounds and admits it has been quite a few years since he was a minor.

Signed by Paramount for just one picture, "24 Hours," in which Olive Brook, Kay Francis, Miriam Hopkins
and Regis Toomey are featured, Watson makes his film debut in this dialogue edition of Louis Bromfield's
novel at the King's Theatre to-day.
Immediately upon the completion of this production he hastened to New York for work in George M. Cohan's
new play, "Friendship."

"Ever since the announcement of my arrival in Hollywood I have been getting mail advertising children's clothes and receiving phone calls from people who think I'm a kid actor," explained Watson. "One evening a woman telephoned and asked for Mr. or Mrs. Watson. She replied I was Mr. Watson. She said she had a boy in pictures and she wanted him to meet my son, 'Minor.'"
"It is an old family name, but I guess I should have changed it to 'Adult' if when I came of age."

"Frankenstein."

Packed to the brim with thrills, and called by experts the most original film ever to reach the screen, Uni-versal's eerie "Frankenstein" will make its debut at the Central Theatre on Saturday with Colin Clive, Mae Clark, John Boles and Boris Karloff in the featured roles.

The extraordinary story of a young scientist who brought a human monster to life through weird electrical mechanisms and surgery is based upon the fantastic eighteenth century narrative of "The Frankenstein" by Mary Shelley, wife of the poet.
Karloff, in his characterization of the man monster, is reported to wear
make-up weighing 48 pounds in itself.
Colin Clive, of "Journey's End" fame,
was brought expressly from London
to enact the scientist, and Dwight
Frye, of "Dracula" plays the important Dwarf of the picture. Edward Van Sloan and Frederick Kerr
complete the cast.

James Whale, the famous Englishman, directed "Frankenstein," and John Balderston, Garrett Fort and Francis Farago prepared the screen adaptation. Arthur Edeson, the well-known cinematographer of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "Waterloo Bridges," photographed the picture and Danny Hall, the equally distinguished artist, designed the unusual settings
of the film.

ROTARY CLUB.*VISITOR SPEAKS AT LOCAL MEETING

Yesterday's weekly meeting of the Hongkong Rotary Club was a "closed" meeting, for mutual gossip. There was a good attendance, the President, Sir William Hornell, being in the chair.

Several visitors attended, the President welcoming Mr. A. E. Schroeder, of Liege, Belgium; Mr. Theo. G. Davis of Manila; Mr. B. V. Early, of Witney, Oxford (where the blankets come from) and Mr. E. D. Bush of Hongkong.

Responding to the welcome, Mr. Davis conveyed the greetings of the Manila Rotary Club, and extended an invitation to Hongkong Rotarians who may visit Manila to attend the weekly tilfins of the Manila Club, held every Thursday at noon at the Manila Hotel.

Mr. Davis said he had travelled about the East a good deal, and was very pleased to note the spread of the Rotary spirit and organisation of Rotary Clubs throughout the Orient. During the past few years Rotarian Jim Davidson had been able to organise Rotary throughout the East, particularly in the British colonies, and had done a splendid piece of work, in getting together the leading business men of places like Hongkong for mutual help.

The speaker said he had spent some time in Japan and it was very interesting to note the enthusiasm in Rotary there. He found the percentages of attendances at meetings very high. At one meeting he sat next to a Rotarian who claimed an average attendance of 170 per cent! Asked how he managed that, he explained that he belonged to two Rotary Clubs, Yokohama and Tokyo. These met on different days, one on Tuesday and one on Thursday. By pooling his attendances, he brought his average up to 170 per cent. (Laughter).

Mr. Davis expressed the conviction that the international Rotary organisation was a valuable factor in helping understanding between nations. The life of every nation depended upon business, and business could only develop and prosper by conscientious and sincere understanding. He hoped that Rotarians, in these trying times, which seemed so dark, would be able to do much to bring about understanding so that all that was good and healthy in life might prosper. (Applause).

The President referred to the lamented death of Rotarian E. R. Dovey, and a vote of condolence was passed, the members standing.

The President also announced that on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 p.m. he had been asked to open the new Dispensary and Maternity Home at Tsun Wan, established by the New Territories Medical Benevolent Society. Members had been invited to attend. There would be special buses from Kowloon Ferry Wharf, leaving between 2.30 p.m. and 2.45 p.m.

Manchuli, June 21.
A new national flag was today hoisted on the flagstaff of the Custom House, subsequent to yesterday's order from the head office of the Manchurian Maritime Customs at Harbin.

WOMEN'S WORLD*FOR OUR LADY READERS.

Paris uses a deep berth to achieve a young look. This Marquess dress has its floral appliques all over the berth and pockets of the flaring skirt. Right: Old-fashioned and charming is this white marquess with corded shirring for the bodice and tiny puff sleeves.

THE NEW BRITISH FABRICS.

The home dressmaker who is busy planning her summer outfit should not forget the importance of fancy materials for blouses, scarves, and even hat trimmings, though these last should be judiciously handled.

Spots, usually fairly large, are fashionable again this year. A frock with brown, blue or black spots on a white or beige ground under a plain coat of crepe is a practical choice. The coat may have a plain or spotted lining. A hint of coarse shiny straw to match the main colour, would complete the ensemble.

A spotted blouse with scarf and hat trimming to match would look well with a plain suit.

Floral prints are being used by many designers. A rather sparse coloured design on a light ground, with a coat of wool moussé carefully matched to the colour of the pattern, is attractive. Wide bands of the material can be used to line the two fronts of the coat.

Plaid and checked patterns are being used for cotton frocks. A short jacket made with the new rounded front hem would look charming in a rather sombre plaid with a touch of brighter colour to match the skirt.

Striped material might be used vertically on the blouse and horizontally on the lining of the jacket to give a new touch to last season's suit. The new collections include striped taffeta or angel-skin scarves.

FASHION NOTES.*Almost Invisible Shoulder Straps.

The very latest fashion for women in the way of an evening dress, is that it should look as little attached to the shoulders as possible. This kind of dress appears to be kept up by nothing at all. But on closer inspection one notices two shoulder straps barely a quarter of an inch wide made of flesh-coloured chaffin.

Flowery metal gauzes are being made into dinner and dance dresses, in which ruffled décolletés, some of them worn off the shoulders, and two or three rows of upright gathers are placed at the top of the skirt.

Skirts in such models hang limp, in straight folds down to the shoe tips. Big soft scarves, and loosely tied sashes, as well as the holding up one's skirt in front gesture, seems to have been particularly revived to harmonise with these delightful look ing frocks.

Peacock fan over skirts applique on the narrow, clinging body of evening frocks are what Paris has been experimenting with this season. The effect is supremely graceful, and gives that long, slim line that everyone has thus far agreed upon.

Almost all lines are on the bias across the skirt, with a few making spirals to help slenderise the more buxom, and to bring out the natural beauties of the body.

These over-skirts cover the under skirt, which is generally about six inches from the ground, and very narrow. In order to permit freedom in walking, the shorter skirt is slit several inches up the back. In some instances, even the under skirt is slit in several places, revealing another under skirt, and so on ad infinitum.

IRISH NURSERY LINEN

The coloured Irish linen table cloths which are both decorative and inexpensive cannot be improved upon for the nursery tea table. One of the most attractive of these cloths has a cream centre, with a border of two or more colours, arranged in various patterns. Small table napkins may also be obtained to match the cloths.

DATE AND APPLE SWEET.

Peel and core 6 large apples, and in the space left by the cores put a date, soaked and stoned.

Add a very little cinnamon and lemon juice, but no sugar, unless the apples are very sour.

Stand them in a deep pie-dish. Cover them with a well-made batter, and bake for about an hour.

THE COMING U.S. ELECTION

The expected has happened by the re-nomination of Mr. Hoover as Republican candidate for the United States Presidency. The National Convention, in adopting him as the G.O.P. choice, has approved an orthodox platform, save for the "wet" plank. There was a move made to induce the Party leaders to make total repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment their policy, but this was resisted. In fact, it is stated that Mr. Hoover definitely declared that he would not accept nomination on such a platform. So far as can be gathered, the "wet" plank simply declares in favour of amending the Constitution so that States which want to legalise liquor may do so, while "dry" States may continue as at present if they so desire. However, the plank goes into some embellishments as to the desirability of a permanent ban on the saloon.

Important as the Prohibition issue is, however, the coming election will be fought on larger issues than this. In the course of the campaign, we shall hear much of the intense depression which has settled on the country, and it may be counted on for a certainty that the Democrats will make all the capital they can out of the situation. On the other hand, the Hoover party will stress the worldwide nature of the depression and contend that, in the circumstances, unfavourable reactions were inevitable in the United States, no matter which party happened to be in power. Personalities will count largely in the election, but at the moment there is no definite indication of the Democrats' choice. The candidates appear to be unlimited in number. At one time, it was thought that Al Smith would be the Democratic nominee, but it now seems unlikely that he will again be chosen to carry the banner. His successor in the Governorship of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has latterly been going through the process known as "grooming." As a well-known commentator has observed, he has many qualities which make him conspicuously eligible as candidate. His long years of political service and the prestige of his high office are noteworthy, and it is not surprising that he is the most mentioned amongst the "probables." This, however, does not ensure his nomination. There are many others in the running, notably Owen D. Young, Newton D. Baker, and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, the last-named an ardent advocate of State rights so far as the Prohibition question is concerned.

Democrats as a whole are said to be very hopeful of a change of Administration as a result of the election, but to the outsider it appears that there will need to be greater unity in the party if success is to be attained. On one issue, however, the Democrats are united, and that is in their opposition to high tariffs. If they were to succeed, there would no doubt be an attempt to change the existing tariff legislation of the United States, but it is by no means certain that any sweeping change would result. In the first place, the Democratic majority in Congress might not be large enough even if a Democratic President were to be elected by a large majority. In the second place, it is unlikely that all Democrats would readily agree upon the terms of a Tariff Bill. Tariff-making in 1933 or later would probably be very much like tariff-making in the past, a scramble of Federal legislators on behalf of their constituents' industries. Besides which we must not overlook the difficulties of any nation suddenly renouncing its traditional policies. At this juncture, it would be futile to attempt to forecast the result of the election, as many factors will arise between now and November which may cause a swing one way or the other. But that the contest will be keenly waged there can be no doubt whatever.

Key To Europe's Problems

Lausanne, like every other recent conference, brings Europe back to the conviction that its central problem is that of Franco-German relations. When it is complained that slow progress is made in their amelioration, it should be recalled that the European schism has existed for hundreds of years. When France emerged as an independent power, it found itself at grips with the Austrian Empire and with those northern states which were given the generic title of the Germans. The division is deep-rooted in the very heart of Europe. It is traditional as well as temperamental. It is historic and hereditary as well as immediate and specific. Those who do not realize the profound character of this opposition of French and German conceptions and ambitions are naturally impatient with the apparently inadequate efforts made by statesmen to bring about a real reconciliation. These facts should be recalled, not to suggest that the task is impossible, or that a transformation cannot quickly take place. The circumstances of modern life and thought are such that the greatest modifications in the relations of peoples are not only feasible but necessary. France and Germany can no longer afford to live apart. Europe can no longer exist if it is torn asunder. The interdependence of the world makes a clean sweep of historic hostilities and age-old cleavages imperative. The past cannot be permitted to thwart the present. But statesmen to-day have to face their problem as though it were a new one. They must state it in modern terms, and, properly stated, without reference to what has gone before, it is relatively simple and is susceptible of speedy solution. Moreover, they know that such solution is essential to their own well-being. The solution is certain because it is essential; but we should not fret if it is not instantaneous. If France and Germany were in agreement British policy would be easy; it would not be required, in the fluctuation of feelings and circumstances, to lean to this or that side. Italian policy, which has always been influenced by the Franco-German division, would entirely change. Germany's quarrel with Poland would be appeased. Certain rivalries in the Balkans would be mitigated. Even the menace of Russia, which is often exaggerated for political purposes, would be immensely diminished. In short, were France and Germany truly friends, something like European unity would be achieved. The Franco-German problem is, therefore, paramount. It is the key-problem. In some senses it is the single problem. Attention may turn to this and that phase of European politics, and rightly turn, but such phases depend on Franco-German politics. Here is the problem whose solution will automatically bring in its train a series of minor and subsidiary solutions. Sometimes attempts are made to outflank it, but the time has come when a frontal attack seems to offer the best chances of success.

HONGKONG: HOMO'S FINAL ANALYSIS THE HALCYON HADES THE MARRIED WOMAN

"Here we may reign secure; and in my choice
To reign is worth ambition, though in hell, Better to reign in hell, than serve in heaven."
—MILTON.

The most phenomenal development of the past few decades has been the psychodynamic reaction of the Western World's married woman to the consummation of her so-called emancipation and its disruptive significance in relation to human evolution has yet to be realised.

The submissive, altruistic, contentment-radiating wife of a generation back has been lost to civilization and in her place we are confronted with a vicious, unscrupulous, self-centred autocrat.

Justification for the deplorable transformation has been sought in puerile platitudes—Sex Equality, Protection of the Weak, Liberation of the Domestic Drudge and Modern Broadmindedness—but the ethical and economic disintegration that has already made itself apparent as a result of this sociological innovation, gives the lie direct to woman's would-be vindicators.

Nature has shown little sign of sex prejudice in her provision of human fighting equipment for the evolutionary struggle and while the original balance of power was maintained, humanity advanced towards the fulfilment of its destiny. To the woman was given beauty, modesty, the faculty of sympathetic understanding, intuition, an infinite capacity for suffering and the subtlety of a hound-harried vixen. Man, on the other hand, was endowed with physical strength and courage, judgment, foresight and the vision and the will to yoke the very stars to his quest chariot.

People who rant about sex equality deliberately ignore the most vital of Nature's procreative laws—the gravitation of opposites. Do like magnetic poles attract? Is strength fundamentally antagonistic to weakness? Does the dog return the snarl and snap of an infuriated bitch? Equality! The whole universe owes its cohesion to dissimilarity of characteristics and the further woman advances towards masculinity, the nearer we approach the end of the human race.

Until recent times both sexes have been content to fulfil the functions for which they are naturally adapted and the combination has given mankind its place in the vanguard of creation. In certain directions, however, civilisation has stagnated while in others achievement has been premature; revelations of science have been misapplied like matches in the hands of a school-boy and the beneficent impartiality of Nature's designs has been nullified.

The most efficacious of woman's sex weapons is beauty of form and face and since Adam first became conscious of his Eve's aesthetic appeal, the physically alluring type of womanhood has managed to exert a very potent influence over the destinies of men and even of nations. After all, she was destined to utilise her talents for the purpose of captivity and for centuries past elaborations in dress, carriage and coiffure have been devised simply because man, who has consistently scorned artificiality in his own direction, has shown such hopeless lack of penetration—such innate toleration and impressionability, where its application to woman is concerned. Surreptitious assiduity along these lines had, up till recently, augmented her power over the male to a considerable degree but the balance was not seriously threatened until cosmetic glorifications—seductive masks of paint and powder—were introduced. With such revolutionary fictitious enhancement of her primary sex asset man's days of domination were numbered and moral and intellectual degeneracy became inevitable.

Conditions to-day afford ample corroborative testimony to the male's object surrender and lamentable subversion, but perhaps the most convincing indication lies in recently introduced jurisprudence anomalies for the protection of the interests of the so-called weaker sex. The fullest possible advantage is being taken of every concession, however iniquitous it may appear in its incidence, and in the direction of divorce and verging upon the ludicrous.

To make the position still more precarious physical strength and courage, man's sex artillery have been rendered innocuous; he has spiked his own guns from an exaggerated, misguided sense of chivalry while woman, ever obdurate and perfidious, was clandestinely rushing her mercenary reinforcements up to the battle-front. Man's sagacity and prescience have, moreover, been undermined by "the devil's power to assume a pleasing shape" and the day is fast approaching when the intellectually inferior sex assumes unchallengeable control and drags humanity into a veritable hell on earth and ultimate extinction.

"An hour may lay it in the dust."

Even the present industrial and financial cataclysms have their origins in woman's malefic ascendancy. The modern siren lives exclusively for emotional exhilaration and only those who are in the position to cater for her insatiable materialistic cravings find favour in her jaundiced sight. And her desires know no bounds, for—

"She never lives but she hopes to live
And always disposing herself to be happy."

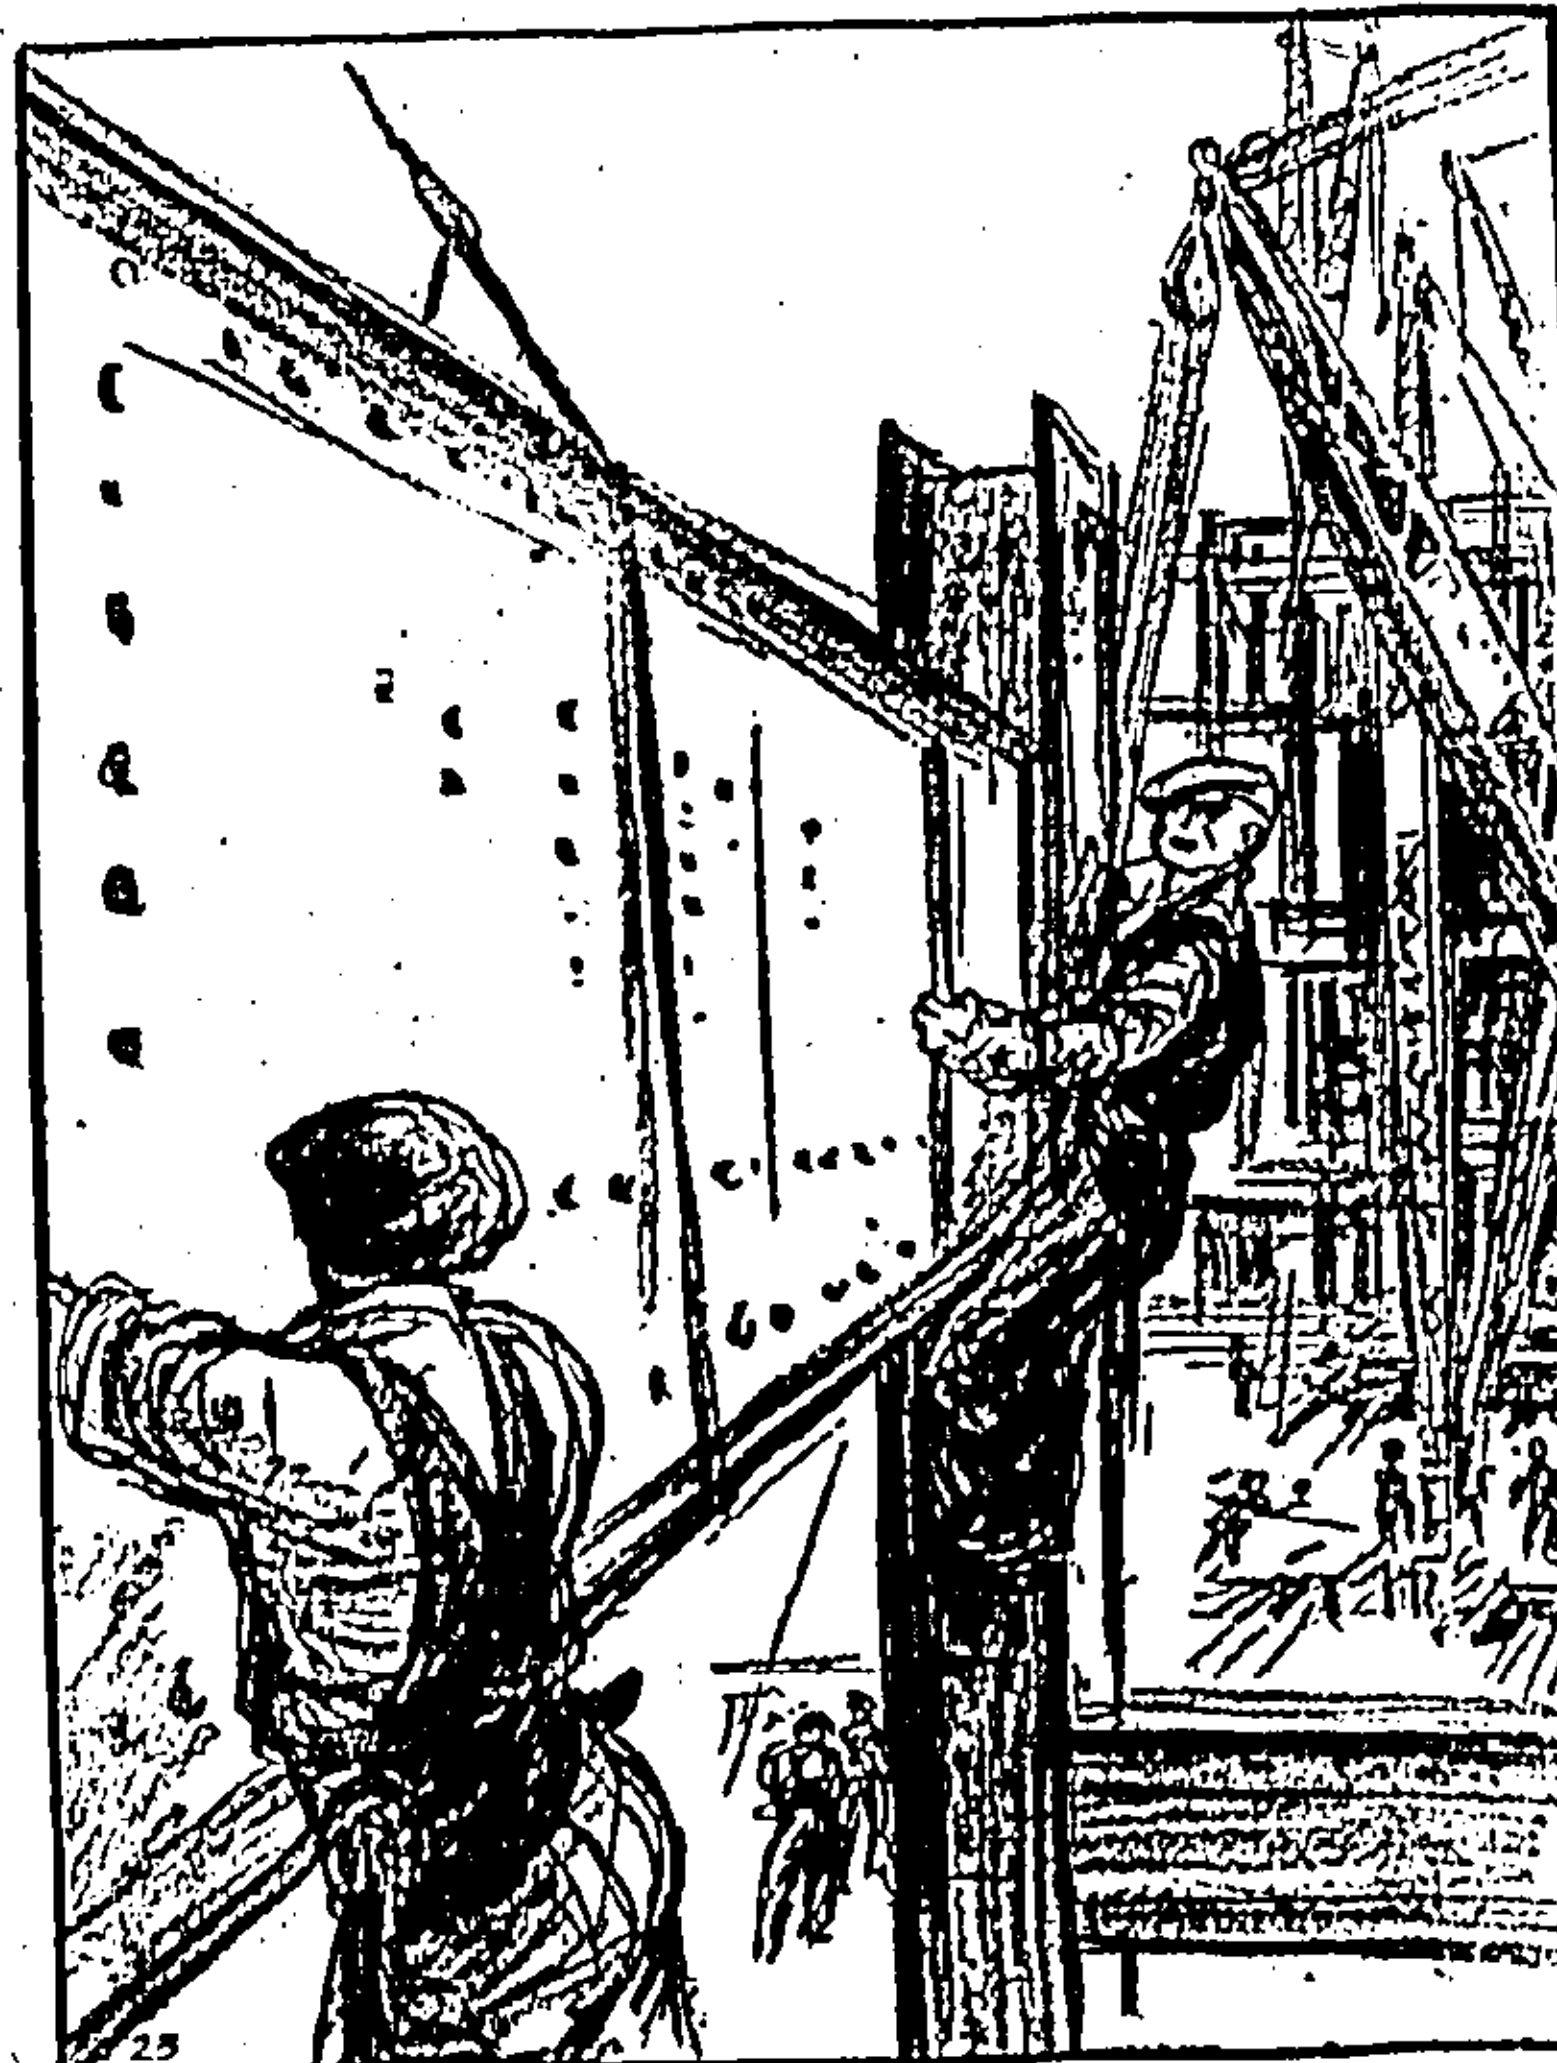

The nobler aspiration of man—his eternal reaching out to find "the happiness that is everywhere and whose spring is in his own heart"—have been usurped by a frenzied, lust for nefarious feminine beauty and he exists to-day for the sole purpose of acquiring the mundane wealth that is indispensable to the attainment of his ignoble objective. Men are looting, lying, thieving and killing for monetary gain to an extent unprecedented in human history and competition, individual and national, has become so acute that the whole structure of civilisation is now in imminent danger of crashing into an imponderable abyss of world-war, revolution and anarchy.

Within the past quarter century scientific research has brought undreamed-of expansion and improvement in productive facilities but this omnivorous, enkindling craze for wealth and power has frustrated essential concomitant progress in economic organisation. Industrial investment and financial speculation, the twin abortions conceived by the mal-distributed issue of labour's sweat and blood, have brought along inevitable overproduction and through the world to-day clearly perceives that its only possible salvation lies in increased purchasing power relative to productive expansion. It is making no attempt whatever to withdraw from this desperate insane scramble for rapidly diminishing prospects of wealth acquisition.

The industrial ship is foundering, its crew has deliberately renounced co-operative action, wherein lies safety for all, and in blind panic is tearing asunder the few remaining life-belts. And to woman alone can be attributed the demoralisation. She has thrust her sex appeal into the vessel's propulsion and navigation departments and by her baneful seductiveness has introduced widespread discord and hostility among men who, left to themselves and their vocations, would have striven in unison towards the attainment of their voyage's laudable objective.

Hongkong lends itself only too readily to the married woman's supremacy campaign and her subversive influence is indubitably demonstrated by the prevalence of incorrigible apathy among the men-folk where all progressive thought and activity is concerned. Femininity is reflected in every phase of the Colony's organic existence; administrative and commercial undertakings are entirely devoid of competence, much less enterprise; and time and ability that should be devoted to the

OF MACAOWARM WELCOME ON ARRIVAL

FUTURE WORK

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, June 21. Considerable enthusiasm marked the arrival of His Excellency Lieut. Colonel Antonio Jose Bernardino de Miranda, Governor of Macao, who accompanied by Madame Miranda and their children, arrived in Macao from Hongkong aboard the cruiser Adamastor.

The new Governor, who is accompanied by Captain Jose da Cruz, as A. D. C., and Lieut. Pedro da Rocha as Private Secretary, was received at the landing stage in the new port at Macao by a very large gathering.

Dr. J. Magalhães, Officer Administering the Government, introduced Col. Miranda to the leading citizens and Government officials and then drove off for a short tour of Macao, repairing to the Municipal Council where the picturesque ceremony of handing the key of the city was carried out in the presence of a very large gathering.

CORDIAL WELCOME.

After speeches of welcome by Dr. J. Magalhães and by Mr. Henrique Nobre da Silva, Chairman of the Municipal Council, in the course of which several aspects of the Colony's problems were dwelt upon, His Excellency replied at length.

After expressing thanks for the cordial welcome extended to him, Colonel Miranda said, "I expect that all of you assembled here to-day, are waiting to hear what I propose to do after I have assumed the post of Governor of Macao. I could tell you that I would not be a fair thing to say. A programme is easy to draw up, but it is never so easy to carry out. I will confine myself to a few general remarks."

In the first place, I shall expect to see the law complied with in its spirit. I shall also try to secure for the people of Macao that which is just to them, and which they are entitled to request the people of Macao to co-operate with me for the development and prosperity of the colony.

GOODWILL NEEDED.

We must all apply ourselves with intensity to the resolution of the problems to be solved. I suppose that there may be some innovations, and reorganisation and even simplification of work. All this requires time for careful planning. There are special needs in Macao, but with harmonious working on the part of every one and with goodwill, we can all achieve magnificent results. All this is not as easy as it has been to say. There is much work to be done, and it is totally impossible for me to carry on by my own shoulders all the load. I look to the people of Macao to help me with loyal and active co-operation and with everyone working as I shall expect you all to work, we will force ahead.

THE FATHERLAND.

It is well for us to remember that without work and organisation nothing useful or durable will result. Let me also remind you that it is not I that call on you to help, it is the Fatherland that wants all of you to work together.

I ask you to salute the Fatherland and do homage to old Portugal, and I ask you to join me in a "Viva" to the noble chief of State, a man who is the personification of our race, who has carried Portugal through times of great stress, who has succeeded by a policy of well-defined good government in helping his Fatherland, Viva to Portugal! Viva General Carmona!

TIN RESTRICTION

SCHEME

London, June 21. A meeting of the International Tin Committee in London to-day was followed by the issue of a communiqué stating that the signatory governments had accepted the scheme known as the modified Byrne Scheme.

The scheme provides that the production of metal in July and August shall cease or be controlled and that thereafter, the ore or metal so controlled will be released at the rate of ten per cent. monthly for ten months.

The plan also provides that the new aggregate for July 1 be reduced at the rate of 17,040 tons yearly below the existing quotas to 54,056 tons.

The scheme will be put into effect on July 1.—Reuter.

RAINS BRING RELIEFKWANGSI OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Wuchow, June 18. Recent rains in Western and Northern Kwangsi have brought to an end the long stretch of drought from which these two sections of the province have been suffering. For a long while the saving of the rice crops from destruction was despaired of, and as a result the price of rice soared high. It is hoped that the timely rains will solve the problem.

River boat traffic has again been resumed on the Pank Shik River (western Kwangsi, near Yunnan border), after almost a month's suspension of traffic owing to low water. Parched crops have also been relieved in the region of Fuhai (Northern Kwangsi, near Kweichow border) by recent rains, which also have facilitated boat travel on the Jung River.

At Wuchow, both the West and the Fu Rivers are at flood height, showing that the territory drained by these two rivers is having an abundance of rain. The waters of the Fu rose several feet in a few hours following a severe thunderstorm on Saturday afternoon.

MILK BOTTLE
THEFTSFOUR LADS CHARGED
AT KOWLOON

Four Chinese lads, described as apprentice carpenters in a shop in Canton Road, were brought before Mr. Fraser, at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning, charged with theft of a number of milk bottles belonging to the Dairy Farm Company and a Chinese company.

It was stated that the lads were asked to deliver some camphor-wood boxes to the Police Training School yesterday, and when they were in Nathan Road, a Chinese detective stopped them and found the bottles inside the boxes.

All the defendants denied theft, and stated that an amah met them in the street and gave them the bottles.

Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, who represented the Chinese company, said he would like to find out where the defendants were taking the bottles. His clients had been losing quite a large number of these bottles lately, and as they had to spend about $2,500 annually for bottles, they would like to get to the bottom of the affair.

Defendants stuck to their story of having been given the bottles by an amah.

His Worship decided to send the lads to the S.C.A. for enquiries and adjourned the case for 48 hours.

DEATH OF MR. H. J.
LAMBA ZEALOUS CHURCH WORKER

Widespread regret will be felt amongst a large circle of friends at the news of the death of Mr. Harry James Lamb, which occurred this morning at the War Memorial Hospital, at the age of 41 years. The deceased, who had been a patient of the hospital for three months, passed away from paratyphoid, followed by complications.

A man of sterling character, he was a pillar of strength to Union Church, with which he had been associated ever since his arrival in the Colony in 1920, and his death is a big loss to that body.

Mr. Lamb came to Hongkong from Glasgow as a representative for Messrs. Arthur and Co., (Export) Ltd., whom he has represented in the Colony since that time. He saw active service in the Great War with the Highland Light Infantry, was wounded in the Battle of the Somme, and taken prisoner of war. He was awarded the Military Medal for conspicuous gallantry.

Mr. Lamb was for two years the Treasurer of Union Church, Hongkong, of which he was also a trustee and member of Committee up to the time of his death. He was also a member of the Hongkong Club and of the Victoria Lodge of Freemasons. Deceased was unmarried, but survived by three sisters and two brothers, resident in Scotland.

The funeral takes place this evening, passing the Monument at 5 p.m.

FATAL MOTOR
MISHAPCYCLIST SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

A young assistant at a cigarette stall met with a fatal motor accident yesterday afternoon when he was knocked down by a motor lorry and received injuries from which he subsequently succumbed.

The youth, Cheung Nam, of the Kwong Lai cigarette stall, of 349, Shanghai Street, was riding a bicycle and had emerged from a side street into Mongkok Road when he collided with a motor lorry and was thrown heavily to the ground. He received injuries from which he died almost immediately afterwards. His body was subsequently removed to the Kowloon Mortuary.

CARGO THEFT

An application for the withdrawal of a plea of guilty which had been entered by his client was made by Mr. C. Y. Kwan before Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Central Police Court this morning when the case in which five boat people are charged in connexion with the pilfering of cargo consigned to Kayamally & Co., was again before his Worship.

At the previous hearing three men who are charged with theft of silks and velvet to the value of $1,245 pleaded guilty, while two women accused of receiving stolen property denied the charges.

Mr. Kwan, appearing on behalf of the first defendant, asked permission to withdraw the plea of guilty. He remarked that he had been instructed since the last hearing and after going into the case had advised his client to plead not guilty.

Mr. Kwan also applied for bail, but Detective Sergeant Fitches, for the police, raised an objection on account of the amount involved and also because of an epidemic of pilfering cases which had been reported recently.

His Worship remarked that the defendant was entitled to bail, although the circumstances might mean substantial bail.

Detective Sergeant Fitches, in reply to his Worship, said the police could prove that the first defendant was the principal in the affair. He was not the master of a cargo boat, as he had claimed, but was a foki and a relative of the master. Kayamally & Co. engaged the first defendant to convey cargo for them and on June 16 the firm was informed that there were three cases of cloth awaiting delivery at the Kowloon Godowns. The first defendant was requested to take delivery of the goods. He went to the godowns some time between 8 and 9 o'clock on June 16. He did not use his own boat as had been his practice, but engaged a boat belonging to the second and third defendants. The cases were not delivered at Kayamally & Co., until 2 o'clock in the afternoon and when they were opened it was found that two of the cases contained coal and sacks.

The cases were opened after the defendant had left, but he was located the same night. After being interrogated by the police, he was allowed to go but was later sent for and charged. Enquiries were made and the goods were found on board a boat on which the fourth and fifth defendants were employed. The second and third defendants were arrested on the information of the first.

The defendants were remanded until next Monday the first on $1,000 bail and the fourth and fifth on $500 each.

CANTON CHOLERA

SEASON

Canton, June 21. The cholera epidemic here has increased to such an extent that the Bureau of Health and Public Safety have made arrangements with the Canton Municipal Hospital that the whole of the Hospital shall be entirely devoted to the accommodation of cholera patients.

The spread of the disease is said to be due to the fact that the public will not adhere to necessary precautions and still consume uncooked fruit and vegetables. Medical authorities have expressed their belief that the persistence of the disease is in part due to the tremendous amount of rain which has fallen, and that as soon as the dry season sets in the epidemic should die down.—Our Own Correspondent.

Sir,—In view of the fact that the first week-day in July is to be a general and public holiday, may I, through the medium of your paper, suggest to the powers that be, that falling as it does this year on a Friday, the following Saturday may also be declared a day "off"?

By foregoing the three hours or so on Saturday forenoon, many a resident whose nerves have been shattered by a hectic June with days alternated with atony heat, rain and fog, would be given an excellent opportunity of having three uninterrupted days in which to regain his lost vitality by disposing himself without any care or hindrance (not necessarily in a nudist) in some breezy seaside resorts or by taking a short

SPEED UP TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS

HONGKONG TOURNAMENT NEEDS RE-ORGANISING

BROADCAST SUGGESTION SHOULD BE CONSIDERED BY L.T.A.

MAKE IT A REAL "OPEN" EVENT

By "VERITAS"

ONE OF THE MOST CONSTRUCTIVE, and, allowing for certain eventualities, the most practical, ideas put forward on behalf of local tennis, was contained in the tentative suggestion made to the Hongkong Lawn Tennis Association by Mr. Denis Hazell when he gave his broadcast talk on Monday evening.

There is without doubt a great need for the local tennis championships to become more "open" in character: not only is new blood required, but it should also, if possible, offer a definitely higher standard of play than is to be found among our present leaders of tennis in Hongkong. To be assured of this it is necessary that the best players from Shanghai, Malaya, Indo-China and the Philippines should take part in the championships.

Unfortunately the existing methods on which the championships are run practically rule out any hopes of "outside" competition. To ask a player from any of the northern or southern parts to forsake his business for three months just for the privilege of playing tennis is quite beyond the bounds of practicability; and it is because participation in our local championship has involved this sacrifice, in the past that we have never enjoyed the presence of such exponents as Aragon from the Philippines, Lim Bong-soon, Roy Smith, from Singapore, Gordon Lum and Tawara from Shanghai, and many other notable players.

THE REMEDY.

But there does appear to be a remedy for this in Mr. Hazell's suggestion. As he very rightly, and rather significantly, pointed out, from the 82 entrants in the championships last February it would be difficult to select a dozen who would have the remotest chance of figuring in the final. Actually it can be reduced to six at the outside; they are, S. A. Ramjani, E. C. Fincher, Honda, M. W. Lo, Tsui, Wat-pui, J.A.E. Cassamuboy and H. D. Ramjani. Assisted by such a fact it does seem fairly obvious that the only way in which to make the tournament additionally interesting is to stage an eliminating contest, and confine the championship proper to, at the most, 32 players. This, as was indicated on Monday evening, would allow the championship to be finished within a fortnight, and would, undoubtedly, make possible participation by the leading players of the North and South.

In addition, I am confident, it would help to eliminate one or two tendencies which tend rather to rob the championships of their full glamour and appeal.

TOURNAMENT TAKES TOO LONG.

Although the tournaments this year were completed in almost record time, yet I do not hesitate to assert that they covered too long a period. Whilst taking full cognisance of peculiar local conditions, I feel that there are features in the organisation of the Men's Championships in Hongkong which compare very unfavourably with any open tournament in England.

In the first place they are held at the wrong time of the year, inviting as they do at present, disturbance and retardance through wet weather. Surely the autumn is the ideal time of the year for the championship? The players, through participation in league tennis during the summer would be in good practice, and in addition would not be called upon to enter straightway into competitive tennis after some four months' absence from the courts.

Secondly the early rounds take far too long to complete. In England, where there are entry lists of anything up to 150 to 200 players, a tournament consisting of four open events and probably four to six handicap events, is finished within six days. The fact that play is continuous from 11 a.m. to sunset daily does not greatly alter the local position.

BIGGER DAILY PROGRAMMES.

It is fairly obvious to anyone familiar with the organisation of the Hongkong championships that the absolute maximum numbers of matches at present played during one day is nine. Generally speaking it is six or seven. Surely there is plenty of means of improving upon this? The Hongkong Cricket Club, upon whose ground the championships have in the past been conducted, do not attempt to take "rates" for matches in the first three rounds. They would therefore be losing nothing if, during this period, additional matches to those which the Cricket Club ground could stage, were arranged and allowed to be played on other courts. Neutral courts could doubtless be obtained, strictness enforced in respect to the playing of the match on the scheduled date, and a rule imposed that all results of matches played outside of the precincts of the Cricket Club to be handed in at the clubhouse no later than the following morning.

AN ADDITIONAL ADVANTAGE.

An additional advantage to be derived from this system of an eliminating tournament would be the encouragement it offers to the young ambitious and progressive player, who, although probably quite a useful exponent, has, through the existing methods of conducting the championship, every chance of running up against one of the leading players and of having his hopes squashed in the first round. Success breeds confidence and if a player knows he is liable to meet, in the early rounds, players of his own calibre, with definite chances of advancing to a later stage in the competition, he is going to enter the tournament more effectively armed than if he knew, with the presence of the first grade players, his "life" in the championship was going to be limited to a couple of rounds at the outside.

L. T. A. MUST ACT.

The L. T. A. is still without its "home," and indications are that it will remain so for some considerable time. This means that the organisation of the championships (Men's singles and doubles) will remain in the hands of the Hongkong Cricket Club. The Club has heretofore, formulated its own bye-laws to govern the competition, and, scanty as they have been, they have apparently proved sufficient to meet the requirements of the tournament.

The position to-day however, is somewhat different to that of, say, three years ago. There now exists a properly recognised Lawn Tennis Association, whose objects, the control and maintenance of all local championships, competitions, interport and exhibition tennis matches, have been accepted by its affiliated members, which includes the Hongkong Cricket Club.

It would seem then, that although the Association must remain under obligation to the Cricket Club for the maintenance of the Men's championships, in so far that the Club's ground is the only one available and suitable for such an event, it has the power to set up rules to govern such a competition, and there seems no reason why the L.T.A., should not, if it so desires, introduce a new system for conducting the tournament on the lines set out above, or in any other manner thought fit by the Association.

ONUS OF INITIATIVE.

I am not suggesting the Association acts in an arbitrarily way regarding this. The Association and the Cricket Club have worked amicably together over the championships for the last two years, and there is no reason why changes of any sort should cause a rift in the lute.

Nevertheless the onus to take the initiative in a matter such as this is upon the Lawn Tennis Association, as the governing body of the game in Hongkong. Its rulings in all matters affecting local competitive tennis, if carrying with them the majority opinion of the Council, must be accepted, and if the Association feels that there is room for some sort of change in the organisation of the championships in the Colony, then it is now in the correct position to effect those alterations. The very least which can be said for Mr. Hazell's suggestion is that it is worthy of official exploration.

HOW SARAZEN WON

SPLENDID GOLF IN BRITISH "OPEN"

Sandwich, June 10. Playing consistent and superb golf, Gene Sarazen, the 31-year-old Italo-American, won the British open golf championship with five strokes to spare and so carried back to America the chief British golf title for the ninth year in succession. Sarazen's wonderful total of 283 strokes is two better than the figures of the remarkable Bobby Jones at St. Andrews in 1927. The American was amazingly consistent with his iron shots. His brilliant play attracted an enormous gallery of 5,000 spectators for the final round.

BEST GOLF OF CAREER.

Sarazen has made a continuous bid for the British title, but until to-day he was unsuccessful. He likes the Prince's course, for it suits the powerful game he plays. It is sometimes called the most difficult course in Europe, a course which, with prevailing high winds, puts a premium on long iron play. This year, in America, Sarazen was said to be playing the best golf of his career and during the last three days he has confirmed it. He has been called the "Pocket Hercules" for he hits the ball terrifically hard. It is interesting to note that he remains one of the very few big golfers in the world who still uses the old-fashioned interlocking grip.

The only Englishman who came within striking distance of the remarkable figures of Sarazen was Arthur Havers, the only British contender to carry off the open title since 1921. Havers was 145 for two rounds and to-day he broke the course record with a truly magnificent 68, which brought him within four strokes of the American. Sarazen was first round this afternoon and returned a 74, thus leaving Havers the almost impossible task of getting a 69 after his record-breaking 68. Havers failed to do it and (Continued on Page 9.)

E. D. ANDREWS TO PAY RETURN VISIT.

Prominent Tennis Player Due Here In September.

E. D. Andrews, the British International Club player and ex-singles champion of New Zealand, who visited Hongkong last year and gave exhibition matches, is returning on another business trip to the Far East this autumn.

He is due to arrive in Hongkong in early September, and will probably remain in the Colony for some little time. Andrews was so impressed with his first visit, that there is small doubt of him again playing exhibition tennis, although he will be denied the opportunity of taking his revenge on C.A.L. Ramjani, who last year sensationally defeated the New Zealander.

Notts met Gloucester, but his efforts only reaped a partial reward, Notts having to rest content with first innings points. Staples scored 121 in the Notts innings, which closed at 387, and followed this up by dismissing Gloucester with the aid of Sam Staples for 267. Arthur Staples took five wickets for 95 runs and his brother 5 for 68.

Dacre played a magnificent forcing innings for Gloucester scoring 109. Notts batsmen assumed the ascendancy a second time, and the closure was applied at 183 for one wicket, but Gloucester played out time scoring 161 for 2 wickets.

D.R. WILCOX 112

Century for Cambridge Against Sussex at Hove

D.R. Wilcox scored a century for Cambridge against Sussex when these teams played a drawn match at Hove. Sussex put on 316 in their first knock to which Cambridge replied with 305.

The country team declared their second innings at 265 for 6, and Cambridge, batting strongly finished up with 182 runs on the board for the loss of 4 wickets.

AMAR SINGH'S BOWLING

All India Beat Worcester by Three Wickets

A splendid bowling feat was accomplished by Amar Singh against Worcester, when he captured seven wickets for 78 runs. The county team compiled 294 at the first time of asking, the Nawab of Patnaudi contributing 83. The Indians topped this by three runs, Nazir Ali (56) and Lal Singh (52) doing the scoring. Worcester's second knock totalled only 210, and with Naidu (61) and Nazir Ali (56) batting well, the Indians secured the necessary runs with ease.

CHOLERA AND THE SANITARY BOARD.

DR. BASTO ASKS FOR INFORMATION

Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto asked the following questions at the meeting of the Sanitary Board yesterday:

1. Will the Head of the Sanitary Department kindly inform this Board whether any precautions have been taken to prevent the spread of Cholera from Canton into this Colony?

2. If the answer is in the affirmative, will he please state for the information of the Board, which are the steps that have so far been taken in this direction?

3. If the answer is in the negative, will he consider the advisability of doing so immediately?

The Chairman, Mr. G. R. Sayer, requested him to bring up the questions at the next meeting, after giving due notice of them.

Advice Of The M. O. H.

Three cases of cholera, one of them fatal, have been reported in Hongkong since Saturday. All were imported cases from Canton.

During the week-end the body of a Chinese was found on the Tung On Steamship Company's wharf. An examination showed that death had been due to cholera.

When interviewed yesterday, the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. G. W. Pope, said there was no cause for local panic, but a few simple precautions should be taken. Fruit should be thoroughly washed before being eaten, he said, and uncooked vegetables should not be eaten on any account.

"The biggest cholera epidemics have been water-borne," he added, "and on that account, I think we can feel much safer than Canton."

When asked if any quarantine restrictions were being imposed, Dr. Pope said this was a matter which was entirely the concern of the Government.

MACAO GOVERNOR ARRIVES.

ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE AND FAMILY

His Excellency Lieut. Colonel A. J. R. Miranda, the new Governor of Macao, arrived in Hongkong yesterday by the M.M. liner Felix Roussel.

Senhor Miranda visited Government House immediately after his arrival yesterday, and met His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, and Mrs. Southern.

He left for Macao at noon yesterday by the Portuguese gunboat Adamastor, to take up his appointment.

He is accompanied by his wife, son and daughter, and by his official staff, consisting of Capt. J. C. Ribeiro, A.D.C., and Lts. J. M. Ribeiro and V. L. Correia, and by his private secretary, Dr. P. da Rocha.

Among those to meet His Excellency upon the arrival of the Felix Roussel were Director Dias Costa (Treasury Secretary), Lieut. B. Abreu (A.D.C.) and the Acting Portuguese Consul in Hongkong, Mr. C. A. de Roza.

Senhor Miranda will relieve Dr. J. Magalhães, the Colonial Secretary of Macao, who is at present the Acting Governor.

AMERICA TAKES STRONG ATTITUDE

Tokyo, June 21.

The Japanese Government has received a communication from the U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, saying that if the Manchukuo Government carries out its reported plan for Customs autonomy and establishes its own service under a Japanese Inspector General, it would destroy the integrity of the Chinese Maritime Customs and violate the spirit of the Nine Power treaty. In the maintenance of which the United States Government is vitally interested.—Reuter.

Seeking Solution.

Tokyo, June 22.

It is learned on good authority that the Japanese Government has decided to exert its good offices for an amicable solution of the question of the Dalron customs, and propose calling a conference of the powers' Ministers and China for the purpose of seeking a solution. They suggest marking an amount necessary for the repayment of foreign loans, while the remainder will be divided between the Chinese Maritime Customs and the Manchukuo Government.—Reuter.

LOCAL GARBAGE COLLECTION

QUESTIONS ASKED IN SANITARY BOARD

A meeting of the Sanitary Board was held yesterday afternoon, with Mr. G. R. Sayer, the President, in the chair, other present being the Hon. Mr. H. T. Creasy, Dr. G. W. Pope, M.O.H., Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, Mr. M. K. Lo, Dr. R. A. Castro Basto, Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy, Dr. Li Shu-fan, Mr. C. Champkin, Mr. J. H. Gelling (secretary), and Mr. J. C. Lang, (assistant secretary).

Mr. M. K. Lo's questions about the local garbage problem were the main item on the agenda.

Mr. Lo asked:

"Will the Head of the Sanitary Department be good enough to make a statement, for the information of the Board, showing the arrangements now in force for the removal of refuse by refuse lorries; in particular, showing the time at which the lorries go round in the city and residential districts for the collection of refuse and explaining why—if such be the fact—the removal of refuse could not, like the removal of night soil, take place at night?"

"In the statement will the Head of the Sanitary Department state what precautions are being taken to minimise the nuisance caused by lorries, filled to capacity with refuse, going through busy thoroughfares, and whether any instructions have been issued to the officers in charge of the lorries not to station the lorries, for the purpose of refuse collection, outside ten or eating houses or shops in which food is exposed for sale?"

"If no such instructions have been given, will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider the advisability of issuing the same?"

Chairman's Reply.

Replying to the points in detail, the Chairman said:

(1) At what times do the refuse lorries go round the city and residential districts for the collection of refuse?

Household refuse from the Peak is removed at night. Elsewhere the lorries go out daily between 5 and 5.30 a.m., completing their tour at about 5 p.m.

(2) Is refuse removed at night and, if not, why not?

Except on the Peak, refuse is not removed at night. It is considered essential that there should be two collections in the town proper in the 24 hours; and at least one must necessarily be by day. A night collection has been tried and abandoned, the lack of light militating greatly against efficient clearance.

(3) What precautions are being taken to minimise the nuisance caused by lorries, filled to capacity with refuse, going through busy thoroughfares?

The provision, so far as possible, of dust-boat stations on the sea front at convenient points so as to avoid long journeys through the streets; and the general instruction to delay as little as possible 'en route' to these stations.

A General Instruction.

(4) Have any instructions been issued not to station lorries outside eating houses, and if not, will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider the advisability of issuing the same?

There is a general instruction that lorries are to halt only just sufficiently long to assist householders to fulfil their obligations under the Scavenging By-laws. No discrimination against eating houses and similar establishments is made and it is not proposed to make any. There are two reasons for this: in the first place, owing to the great number and the frequent change of location of such establishments it would probably be quite impracticable; but secondly, such establishments, having ex hypothesi, more than the average amount of fresh food on the premises and in consequence more than the average amount of organic refuse, would appear, anything, to have a special claim on the lorries for assistance in removing such refuse as rapidly and frequently as possible.

HON. MR. CREASY'S DEPARTURE.

TRIBUTE TO HIS WORK IN THE SANITARY BOARD

Before the meeting of the Sanitary Board terminated yesterday afternoon, the Chairman, Mr. G. R. Sayer, made a reference to the impending departure of the Hon. Mr. H. T. Creasy, the Director of Public Works.

In doing so, he said that he was sure the Board would not like to let the opportunity slip of saying a few words of farewell to Mr. Creasy. One aspect of Mr. Creasy's connexion with the Board he would like to refer to. Mr. Creasy had been connected with the Board for the last nine years, and during that time the number of occasions he had not been able to attend its meetings could be counted on the fingers of one hand.

He would like to place on record Mr. Creasy's valuable services to the Board.

Hon. Mr. Creasy's Reply.

The Hon. Mr. Creasy, replying, said:

I have to thank the President for his kind reference to my work whilst I have had the honour of being a member and of Vice-President of this Board, with which I have been associated since 1923. It has always been a great pleasure to co-operate with my colleagues in the work of the Board, and though perhaps we have not always seen eye to eye as to the best method of attaining a desired end, that end has always been the same view of the advancement and betterment of the conditions under which the citizens of Hongkong have to live. I wish the Board every success in all their endeavours to improve existing conditions.

Chinese Appreciation.

Mr. Wong Kwong-tin said: Sir, being senior Chinese member of this Board, I wish to say a few words before the departure of Mr. Creasy. We regret very much to lose the Hon. Mr. Creasy. We enjoyed very much working with him. His position is difficult to replace, as his advice to this Board is of sterling quality. I have worked with him for a year in this Board and we have had hot arguments, but we all enjoyed it. I have nothing more to add but to wish that Mr. Creasy will live long and enjoy a well-earned pension.

There is a general instruction that lorries are to halt only just sufficiently long to assist householders to fulfil their obligations under the Scavenging By-laws. No discrimination against eating houses and similar establishments is made and it is not proposed to make any. There are two reasons for this: in the first place, owing to the great number and the frequent change of location of such establishments it would probably be quite impracticable; but secondly, such establishments, having ex hypothesi, more than the average amount of fresh food on the premises and in consequence more than the average amount of organic refuse, would appear, anything, to have a special claim on the lorries for assistance in removing such refuse as rapidly and frequently as possible.

Oh, dear, she had hurt his feelings again. The slow colour suffused his cheek and stained his neck. Susan hastened to make amends.

"I am sorry. But honestly, I hadn't the least idea." His eyes burned in into hers. "I knew the first time I saw you that you were the girl for me. Sorta fine—I thought—d'you know what I mean—I thought you were incorruptible. I liked that."

She was proud. She might have no least feeling for this boy but the word, the implied compliment, touched her deeply. Shyly she said, "Thank you for saying that."

He gripped the bars again, leaning forward in his eagerness.

"Don't answer me now. You can't decide that kind of thing all of a sudden. Take your time. I'm not a bad sort. I—I'd be good to you. I don't think your aunt would mind."

Mystified, Susan asked what made him think that.

"Oh, that night I had a little talk with her—well—too pretty to work downtown among all those millionaires and so on. She seemed to think it would be better if you were settled down."

"I never heard of such a thing," murmured Susan, scandalized. Ben nodded heavily.

"That's what she said," he corroborated.

They drifted back to the landing almost in silence. The sun was slipping downward now. The park had lost its pristine look of glory and had become just a city playground with a litter of papers on its surface.

Ben handed her out of the boat with chivalrous care.

WITNESS CLOSELY EXAMINED

application made?—Yes, the application was made by a solicitor.

On the application made by the solicitor you were released?—Yes.

Did any of them, Zimmern or Christie, say whether they made statements themselves?—Yes.

They told you under what circumstances they came to make those statements?—Yes.

How?—They said they had been up in Canton and that when they came down they were arrested and made those statements.

Did they say how they came to make those statements?—They told me very little about that.

Was Cheng's name brought into it?—Yes.

In what way?—Zimmern said the "fourth brother" had told the Police all about this matter and advised me not to be so foolish as to keep back anything.

The fourth brother is the accused?—Yes.

Do you know it was a fact that Cheng, the accused, has never been asked a single question by the Police?—I don't know.

Did Zimmern tell you that the fourth brother had told the Police everything? Now, you kept nothing back, did you?—I kept nothing back.

And you told all the facts as they occurred that night?—Yes.

Re-Examined.

Re-examined by the Public Prosecutor:

Now, this remark made in the car when the crowd was seen outside the Yeung Wo Nursing Home. No one else besides you said "I wonder what is up?"—Yes.

Who else?—Zimmern.

Then, as to those two Chinese who passed the car whilst you were waiting outside 50, Village Road, what type of men did they appear to be?—Ordinary people.

What sort of ordinary people, coolies?—Middle class people.

I think in answer to my friend you appeared to say that somebody suspected them although you didn't—I did not suspect them, Zimmern did.

Is it possible, do you think, the accused Cheng might have made the same remark after the car started to Zimmern about the "Road of Death"?—I did not hear that.

I didn't ask you whether you heard it? I asked you if it's possible that it was heard?—I personally did not hear it.

How many times previous to that night did accused give you presents of money?—About three times.

He ever give you as much as $10 before?—No.

What was the biggest sum ever previously given you?—Round about $5.

Did he give you as much as $5?—He did.

The Statements.

Now you said, quite correctly, it was on Friday week after this affair that you were brought up and had your first statement made?—Yes.

Was that a long or short statement?—A very short and rough statement.

The second statement, what about that on the next day?—But I was sent for again on Friday night for further questioning.

I am talking to you about the statement taken from you the next

STOKER KILLED.

STEAM PIPE BURSTS ON LAUNCH SAI KUNG

A fatal accident was yesterday reported to have occurred on board the steam launch Sai Kung, formerly a ferry boat on the Hongkong-Sai Kung run, while the vessel was in Chinese waters during the early hours of the morning.

On the boat's return to Hongkong yesterday the coxswain reported that Ah Shing, a stoker was killed by an escape of steam resulting from the bursting of a steam pipe in the stoke hold. He was scalded to death.

There was no other casualty although the engineer was also in the hold. The launch was at Tai Chan at the time.

day.—Yes, at noon. It was a long statement.

You say in the course of that statement you never mentioned about the girl Josephine?—I think I omitted that in my second statement.

His Worship: You think you had forgotten to tell the police in your statement on Saturday afternoon about the girl Josephine?—Yes, I think I left out a great deal.

The Public Prosecutor referred witness to the statement taken down by Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds on that Saturday and reminded witness that in that statement he had mentioned the girl.

Public Prosecutor: Do you mean to say that you forgot it on Friday and made it on Saturday?—Yes. On Saturday after I was reminded by the C.D.I. of the meeting of the girl, and it was for that I was detained.

Formal evidence was given by a room "boy" of the Nathan Hotel. He gave details of the bookings which were made by the deceased Fung and his lady friends.

The further hearing was adjourned until this afternoon.

PORTUGAL'S NEW CONSTITUTION

TO BE SUBMITTED TO A PLEBISCITE

Lisbon, May 28. Sweeping changes which herald the end of the Dictatorship are proposed in a new constitutional law which is to be issued throughout the country to-day—the sixth anniversary of the establishment of the Dictatorship of General Carmona.

Referring to the new form of Democratic Government to be adopted, the new law proposes that the party system of Government shall be substituted by a National Assembly, the representatives of which shall number 90. They would be elected for a term of four years, but would be invested only with legislative powers.

The President of the Republic would be elected by direct suffrage for a term of seven years, would be invested with independent powers, and be responsible for the formation of the Government. A Consultative National Council would be attached to the Presidency.

The new law, states the Decree, is submitted to the appreciation of the public, and will be followed by a national plebiscite in order that the wishes of the nation may be consulted before the new constitution comes into force.

SOVIET OFFICIAL IN BACKGROUND

ALLEGATION BY LINER CAPTAIN

Paris, May 28. The suggestion that a high Soviet official, who could speak French fluently and was the only man on board who could have acted as an interpreter, kept in the background while the crew of the Soviet liner Neft were trying to salvage the French liner Georges Philippiar, which was destroyed by fire in the Gulf of Aden, is made by Captain Vieg, of the Georges Philippiar, in an interview with the Matin at Suez.

Captain Vieg was among the 420 survivors rescued by the Russian tanker Sovietskaya Neft. None of the Soviet crew, he states, spoke any language other than his own except the captain, who knew a few words of English. Consequently Captain Vieg had great difficulty in making himself understood during the salvage operations, though the Russian officers and sailors were as helpful as could be.

It was not until he was leaving the Soviet ship next day for the Andre Lebon, which took off the survivors, that he caught sight of a man who, he understands, was a people's Commissar who could speak French perfectly.

CANAL ACROSS FRANCE

To Connect Atlantic and Mediterranean

A project for the construction of a canal across south-western France, which would link the Atlantic with the Mediterranean and greatly reduce the distance between western Europe and the Orient by sea, has been submitted for the approval of the Ministry of Public Works by a company which desires to undertake its construction.

It is estimated that the total cost would be between 12,000,000,000 and 15,000,000,000 francs—$480,000,000-$600,000,000—and the work could be finished, if commenced within the next 18 months, by 1940.

Like earlier projects for this so-called Two-Seas Canal the present plan would have as its foundation the two existing small channels, known as the Canal du Midi and the Lateral Canal of the Garonne River. Unlike earlier projects, the present scheme is to construct a waterway big enough to accommodate merchant steamers. The plans call for a channel 13½ meters (44 feet) deep, 150 meters wide at the surface and 60 meters wide at the bottom.

Great Saving in Mileage.

Such a waterway across south-western France would reduce the distances between Atlantic or North Sea and Mediterranean ports as follows:

Between	Saving in Miles
Bordeaux and Marseilles	1805
Bordeaux and Port Said	1275
Le Havre and Marseilles	1200
Bordeaux and Tunis	1175
Hamburg and Marseilles	1160
London and Marseilles	1160
Liverpool and Genoa	1100
Danzig and Barcelona	995
Southampton and Port Said	965

Viewed from the standpoint of trade with the Orient, the Bordeaux-Narbonne Canal would serve as a sort of prolongation or supplement to the Suez Canal, and would occupy a position of great importance in world trade. It would permit of considerable saving in fuel and maritime insurance, as well as of economies in time.

From the French viewpoint, such a waterway would tend to develop the seaports and industries of the south, which in recent years have lagged somewhat behind those of northern France. The Two-Seas Canal would tend to open up comparatively undeveloped regions in the interior of south-western France. Irrigation projects in connexion with the canal and electric power schemes linked with it would stimulate agriculture and industry throughout the area.

Expect 100,000,000 Tons.

Promoters of the canal project think they could count on an annual traffic of 100,000,000 tons or the equivalent of 20,000 ships of

AGED NOVELIST'S "URGE"

HOUSE SET ON FIRE TO ACQUIRE IDEAS

Berlin, May 29. Herr Karl Strecker, a novelist, aged 70, whose earlier work enjoyed a considerable reputation, explained to a Potsdam Court yesterday why he had tried to set a house on fire last year.

He had already been sentenced to a year's imprisonment at a first trial, but a retrial was ordered for an unusual reason; he had fainted while exercising his right to have the last word, and the Court without waiting for his recovery had withdrawn to pass judgment on him. Since the first trial Herr Strecker's health has notably improved, so that he was able to make his statement this time without difficulty.

His most popular novels, he said, had been on criminal themes, and he became absorbed with the idea of experiencing the emotions of a criminal. At the age of 70 he had exhausted his ideas and felt the need of some new experience in order to write a masterpiece about contemporary misery.

"I want to grow beyond myself in order to portray our times as none else has done," he declared. He had not seriously wished to burn the house, which did not belong to him but to a woman for whom he had no particular desire to secure insurance money. He planned that the fantastic way in which he set about firing the house (the fire was successfully extinguished) proved that he had not had criminal intentions.

5,000 tons each annually. This would mean about 56 ships a day through the canal in both directions, making an average speed under their own power of about 10 miles an hour. At a speed of 14 knots, ships could make the passage from Bordeaux to Narbonne or back in less than 24 hours.

Fourteen locks, with an average elevation of about 20 meters, are projected. The rise would be gradual from the Atlantic to a point east of Toulouse, where the summit would be reached at an elevation of 143.50 metres.

The company which desires the concession for this big enterprise proposes that it be granted, under State control, for a period of 75 years. At the conclusion of this term, the canal would become State property. The undertaking would be financed through bond issues of from 2,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 francs a year over a period of five or six years. The company estimates its probable receipts at 1,000,000,000 francs a year, based on a toll charge of 10 francs a ton.

Although the economic advantages of the scheme are principally emphasized, it is also realized that the waterway would have great strategic advantages.

BIG FIGHT
FARCESHARKEY WELL
BEATENBUT IS GIVEN DECISION

VERDICT HOOTED

New York, June 22.

Eighty thousand spectators saw America, in the shape of Jack Sharkey, wrest the world's heavyweight championship from Europe last night, but what a victory!

The decision was awarded to Sharkey on points, but what a decision!

A large proportion of the audience expressed the opinion, in no uncertain terms, that Max Schmeling, German holder of the title, was unquestionably robbed of the verdict.

In the opinion of competent judges, Schmeling won at least nine of the fifteen rounds, and Sharkey no more than four, two of them breaking about even.

One of the judges, incidentally, Charles Mathieson, gave Schmeling as having won ten of the fifteen rounds.

George Kelly, the referee, and Gunboat Smith, favoured Sharkey and in accordance with their feeling, the verdict was given.

ROAR OF DISAPPROVAL.

The huge crowd rose to its feet and roared its disapproval. Schmeling stood dazed and bewildered, with his mouth open. He then recovered his equilibrium, walked over to Sharkey, and shook hands with him in congratulation.

Throughout the fight, the German champion was extremely confident, displaying a fine left, whereas Sharkey indulged in a good deal of wild hitting and was continually backing round the ring.

FOUL BLOW.

Both opened rather cautiously, but Schmeling carried the fight to his opponent, Sharkey replying with both hands.

In the fifth round, Sharkey landed a palpably low blow, causing a roar of anger among the huge crowd, but the German fought back magnificently.

In the eleventh round, Schmeling was clearly dominant. Sharkey's left eye was slowly closing and thereafter the German played on this target, Sharkey replying with some telling blows to the head.

In the last three rounds, there were some very thrilling exchanges, the German getting in some fine lefts to the face and stinging rights to the jaw and ribs. Sharkey retaliated with body blows.

"NOT GREATLY WORRIED"

The contest took place at America's latest boxing stadium, The Madison Square Garden New Bowl, Long Island.

The celebrities present included Primo Carnera, the Ambling Ab, Kid Berg, Mayor Walker of New York and Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

Schmeling, interviewed by Reuter after the contest, declared: "I am not greatly worried. How could Sharkey have gained the decision when he was backing away most of the time? I will fight him again."—Reuter.

The Government is also granting a year's grace in respect of the collection of arrears.—Reuter.

ASIA EXPANSION

TOKYO, June 22.

A remarkable speech by Viscount Ishii caused a profound impression at a banquet last night to the new United States Ambassador to Japan, Mr. Grew.

Japan's relations with the United States and the forecasts of an inevitable war between the countries was dwelt upon by the speaker, and Viscount Ishii, pooh-poohing the idea of war between Japan and America, hinted that the United States must not try to defeat Japan's objects in Manchuria.

He said that Japan would be foolish if they attempted to interfere in the Western hemisphere, as much as to say that the United States would be foolish if she interfered in Asia.

The occasion was the banquet of welcome to Mr. Grew given by the Japanese-American Society in Tokyo, those present including Prince Tokugawa, Admiral Viscount Saito and Viscount Ishii.

"REMOTE" CONTINGENCIES.

Viscount Ishii delivered the address of welcome and referring to the rumours of possible war between the two countries, said he considered that this was only possible in two highly improbable contingencies:

(1) If Japan was foolish enough to interfere unduly in the Western hemisphere;

(2) If the United States attempted to dominate the Asiatic Continent, preventing Japan from pacific and natural expansion in this part of the world.

He was convinced, however, he said, that America's only concern in the Orient was the maintenance of peace and respect for Treaties.—Reuter.

Much serious fighting has occurred in the last few days, according to Japanese information.

PLAN SUBMITTED
TO POWERSBRITAIN AND U.S. REACH UNDERSTANDINGNEW DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED

Lausanne, June 22.

IT IS DISCLOSED that France yesterday made a definite contribution towards the settlement of the reparations issue. The French proposals, as outlined to leading foreign statesmen, fall far short of the ideal solution, but the veil of secrecy surrounding the discussions has successfully concealed the views of other Powers.

The proposals submitted include:
A SUSPENSION OF REPARATIONS FOR THREE YEARS.

DELIVERIES IN KIND SHALL BE ALLOWED TO CONTINUE.

AFTER THE PERIOD OF SUSPENSION, GERMANY SHALL AGREE TO PAY A GLOBAL SUM, WHICH WILL BE DIVIDED BETWEEN AMERICA AND OTHER CREDITOR COUNTRIES ON A PROPORTIONATE BASIS.

Presumably, France suggests that Germany shall make one more, large payment three years hence to satisfy all claims against her. Meanwhile, other proposals are in the air, and important developments are hourly expected.

Right in the centre of things is Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose remarkable speech at the opening of the Conference, and whose powerful lead in the proposal to wipe the war debts slate clean, have inspired the United States to make definite proposals, linking a revision of war debt agreements with a real disarmament.

AMERICAN PROPOSALS SUPPORTED

Mr. Herriot and Mr. Hugh Gibson, who has been authorised to discuss vital proposals, were unable, it is believed, to find a common basis, but there is complete unanimity between Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Gibson as the result of private conversation at Ouchy, near Lausanne, of the American scheme.

DEFINITE UNDERSTANDING

It is hoped that the reaching of a definite Anglo-American understanding, powerfully supported by Italy and Germany, in her own interests, will lead to important decisions in the course of the day.

Private conversations between the leading delegates again occupied the time and attention of world statesmen yesterday both at Geneva and at Lausanne.

Close secrecy is being observed in official quarters regarding the trend of these talks, but it is known that at the present stage they constitute the best method of reaching a solution of the problems with which they are confronted.

Newspaper correspondents attach particular importance to yesterday, a few miles to the north-east of Koshan, when more than a thousand Chinese troops attacked the Japanese forces. The Chinese suffered very heavy casualties and were dispersed, the Japanese claim.

It is also claimed by the military headquarters that five hundred shells and sixty-six rifles together with much small ammunition, were captured in the engagement, in which their own losses were between forty and fifty.—Reuter.

Ian Collins, the brilliant Scottish tennis player, who caused a sensation at Wimbledon yesterday by beating Cochet. Collins is regarded as essentially a doubles player, a maker of openings for his partner to provide a spectacular coup de grace.

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, June 21.

The Wimbledon crowd was provided with its first sensation to-day when Henri Cochet, the French champion, generally acknowledged as the world's finest singles player was eliminated in the second round.

His conqueror was Ian Collins, who played brilliantly, to take the match by three sets to one, although he is not been regarded at all seriously as a singles player, his high reputation being built up on his brilliance in doubles play.

Collins to-day defeated Cochet after losing a love set. The young Scot began splendidly, winning the first set at 6-2, and he made it two sets to love after a terrific fourteen-game duel.

BETTER STRATEGIST!

In the third set, Cochet dominated the play and won six-love, but Collins again proved his master in the fourth. Cochet suffered much the same fate in the Wimbledon championships a year ago, being eliminated in an early round by Nigel Sharpe. Excuses were made for him on that occasion in that he had only just recovered from an illness.

To-day, no excuse could have been advanced. He was beaten by a much better strategist, of all things, on the day's play. Collins won chiefly through his magnificent service, and he produced a type of stroke which continually prevented Cochet from employing the devastating rising ball drive which made him world famous.

Collins hit as hard as ever he has been seen to hit, with splendid accuracy from the back of the court, and every now and again, his service, with first and second

ATTACK LIMITED

London, June 21.

D. R. Jardine, the Surrey skipper, has been chosen to captain England in Saturday's Test Match against All-India. The eleven, in which there are elements of surprise on account of omissions, has been selected as follows:

D. R. Jardine (Surrey), captain;
F. R. Brown (Surrey);
R. W. V. Robins (Middlesex), Sutcliffe (Yorkshire), Holmes (Yorkshire), Paynter (Lancashire), Voce (Nottingham), Bowes (Yorkshire), Ames (Kent), Hammond (Gloucester), Woolley (Kent).

Extremely powerful in batting, the side does not appear to be particularly strong in attack and the absence of Larwood, if not of Tate, will cause some comment. Doubtless, the preference given to Bowes over Larwood is experimental.

Holmes will doubtless feel gratified that the selectors have considered him on his merits, at long last, and have given him an opportunity of revealing his powers as an opening batsman with his famous team colleague in a representative game.

Frank Woolley refuses to permit himself to be overlooked even after having celebrated his 45th birthday a month ago.—Reuter.

MAN HUNTERS

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Susan Carey finished business school and secured a job as secretary to Ernest Heath, architect. Jack Warner, divorced, tried to flirt with her but is rebuffed. Ben Lampman, a young man, takes Susan to a studio party but she does not like his friend, Susan's mother, who comes to see her. Susan's mother, who comes to see her. Susan's mother, who comes to see her.

CHAPTER XVI

It was Saturday afternoon during the third week of Aunt Jessie's absence. Susan had received a wire only that morning saying her aunt would return on the seven o'clock train. Now, at one o'clock, the long afternoon yawned before her. In there anything in all the world so dreary as a half holiday spent alone? The world seems full of chattering, hoarse groups and couples. Young men with tennis racquets, girls in thin white, elderly men with golf bags, mothers with children bound for the beaches.

Susan couldn't decide quite what to do with herself. She wandered down to Michigan avenue, decided against lunching alone, and finally managed to struggle to the top of a north bound bus. She would buy some sandwiches, she decided, and get off the bus in Lincoln Park and picnic all by herself. That would be better than going home to an empty house.

It was such a day as occasionally comes to Chicago in August, a day divinely blue, superbly cool. The sun was warm and yet already, so early as this, there was a hint of autumn's crispness in the air. Susan took off her hat and let the lake breezes ruffle her hair into little ringlets. She felt perfectly happy, at peace with the world. It was luxury, just to be alone on such a day as this. She felt superior to the noisy groups she had envied half an hour before. While they were wearing themselves out on tennis courts or golf links she, Susan Carey, would enjoy the glory of the day.

The bus was bowling along through the green park now. There were glimpses of the lake through the trees and to the west you could see the roof of the refectory. Susan decided to alight. As she proceeded down the aisle, swaying and clutching at the backs of seats to steady herself, she heard her name called.

"Hello, Miss Carey." The bus swayed to a stop and she turned around to catch the eye of Ben Lampman.

"I'm getting off here," she said wildly and unnecessarily, since her purpose was apparent. She flung herself down the stairs, the young man at her heels.

"I didn't mean—you needn't have bothered—I'm terribly sorry you—"

He smiled at her. "I wasn't going anywhere in particular. Thought I might as well get off here. It's a swell day."

She agreed although the description seemed to her highly inadequate.

"Where are you bound for?" Susan resigned herself to the inevitable. After all, she might as well be pleasant to this young man. Rose said he was lonely. He had no relatives in town and was "the queer moody sort who doesn't make friends easily."

His lean, dark face lighted up. "That would be great," he said. "Look, there is the Casino, right over there. We can pick up some sandwiches. Gosh, I wish I'd known. I'd have brought my thermos."

"Well, we can get ginger ale," Susan said comfortingly. What a strange young man he was. For a moment or two he seemed inconceivable over the absence of his thermos. Susan repeated a little impatiently, "It doesn't matter at all."

But the moment passed and soon they were laughing and talking like old friends. They sat on a little hillock near the lagoon. Ben spread out newspapers so that Susan's pink shantung frock should remain innocent of grass stain. Over the

Jean Colin's job is to stare at people. And because the British actress' newest role demands that she maintain a fixed stare and move with the mechanical gestures of a doll for two hours nightly, she has insured her eyes for $100,000 because of the strain.

"Why, he's not half bad, really," the girl thought in surprise.

The boy said to himself, "Lord, but she's prettier than I remembered and not as standoffish."

Susan brushed the crumbs from her skirt and Ben made a parcel of the debris which he deposited in one of those huge baskets park officials have disposed of tree trunks for the benefit of tidy citizens.

"Let's go for a row," he proposed.

"I didn't know you could," Susan said.

"Sure. You get the boats over on that side," he pointed.

It was pleasant to drift along on the green water, to dabble your hands and sit back luxuriously as a young man rowed. Susan wondered if Cleopatra had felt like this as she floated down the Nile. She smiled at the ridiculous thought and looked up to find Ben's eyes fixed upon her.

"This is nice," she said confusedly. He nodded. He had taken his coat off and for the first time she noticed how broad his shoulders were under the thin white shirt. A farm boy—wasn't that what Rose had said? Well, he didn't look much like a farm boy now. He looked more like a young poet or the musician he really was.

Mr. Heath wouldn't approve of Ben the girl decided. She flushed, wondering why it mattered. Mr. Heath would have thought Ben rangy and rather unkempt, although his linen was spotless and his shabby suit well brushed. All the young men who came to see

Leopold Stokowski, the famed conductor, leading a composite band of 200 unemployed musicians in an open air band stand in Philadelphia.

If it's true that screen stars set styles for a large part of the feminine population, then your girl friend may eye you through a monocle next time you call. For this is how Fraulein Hilde Heinrich, the German actress, appears on the streets.

Mr. Heath were, clipped, assured, and perfectly turned out. Most of them had been to Harvard or Yale or Princeton. They knew the right people and belonged to the right clubs. Ben would never do either of those things.

They rounded the little turn and started to go back toward the landing. Susan, noticing with alarm the lengthening shadows, asked Ben the time.

"Don't you worry. I'll get you back with minutes to spare," he assured her.

They were in the shadow of a willow now. The light was curious and unreal and for no good reason Susan's heart began to pound. Perhaps it was something in the way the young man looked at her as he rested on his oars.

She managed a smile. "All right, go ahead."

He stumbled over the words but they sounded astonishingly clear. "I want to—I want to ask you to marry me."

Susan gasped. She felt as if a thunderbolt had fallen. What could she say? She could think of nothing. She looked at him and looked away again, unable to bear the terrible earnestness of his gaze.

She gasped. "But I hardly know you—I never even dreamed—"

Gloomily the young man said, "That's just it. I knew you would say that. Don't you believe in love at first sight?"

Susan stared. "Yes, I guess so. But what has that to do—"

CINEMA SCREENING.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

It is always hopeless when a girl lavishes all her love on one man and receives none in return? Custom decreases that a woman shall be the pursued one. In view of this should
she retire and suffer in silence or fight with all her feminine wiles for
the possession of the one she feels
to be her man?

This situation forms the basis of the story of "She Couldn't Say No,"
the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production starring Winnie Lighter and Chester Morris, which is coming to
the Queen's Theatre on Friday. The famous Winnie is shown as an entertainer in a night club, desperately in
love with Jerry, the former racketeer
who has become her manager. But Jerry (played by Chester Morris) is decidedly not interested. Winnie
tells Jerry of her great love for him
and begs him to give up the society girl who, Winnie feels, is entirely different from the men she has been accustomed to meeting. He insists upon procuring his love for the other girl, and Winnie, after a futile
fight, leaves the city broken hearted.
Months later Jerry's eyes are opened
but it is too late.

"She Couldn't Say No" is not just a romantic and dance film. It is filled with absorbing drama. The supporting
cast includes Sally Eilers, Johnny
Arthur and Tully Marshall. Lloyd
Bacon directed and the screen play
was written by Robert Lord and Arthur Caesar. It is an adaptation of Benjamin M. Kaye's play of the same name.

"24 Hours"

Minor Watson is having a difficult time convincing Hollywood that he did not come from New York for the
laurels of Jackie Coogan, Jackie Cooper, Mitzel Green, Junior Durkin,
Jackie Serr, and other juveniles.
Watson, one of Broadway's best-
known actors, with recent plays such
as "It's a Wise Child," "This Thing Called Love," "Howdy King," and
"These Modern Women" to his credit,
is about six feet tall, weighs 170
pounds and admits it has been quite
a few years since he was a minor.
Signed by Paramount for just one picture, "24 Hours," in which Clive Brook, Kay Francis, Miriam Hopkins
and Regis Toomey are featured, Watson makes his film debut. In this dialogue edition of Louis Bromfield's
novel at the King's Theatre to-day,
immediately upon the completion of
this production he hastened to New York for work in George M. Cohan's
new play, "Friendship."

"Ever since the announcement of
my arrival in Hollywood I have been getting mail advertising children's clothes and who think I'm a kid
actor," explained Watson. "One
evening a woman telephoned and asked for Mr. or Mrs. Watson. I replied I was Mr. Watson. She said she had a boy in picture, 'Minor.'
It is an old family name, but I guess
I should have changed it to 'Adult'

"The Perfect Alibi"

Crowds will no doubt flock to the Queen's Theatre for their share of
the thrills and electrifying suspense
occupying the screen in the latest
film shocker, "The Perfect Alibi."
This famous play, adapted and produced in England by Basil Dean for
Associated Radio Pictures (RKO-Radio Pictures), ran for two seasons on Broadway as a stage success. On the screen it is said to be meeting with
even greater acclaim. It tells the dramatic story of two criminals bent
on vengeance against the man who
convicted them twenty-five years before. Ingratiating themselves into his home and confidence, and trading on the fact that he fails to recognise them, they murder him and cover their tracks with a perfectly manufactured alibi. Each man's story hinges on the movements and whereabouts of the other at the time of the crime.

Although the audience is always aware of the identity of the murderers, even sees the crime committed, the suspense is built to fever pitch by the extraordinary manipulation of the plot which author Albee has provided for the film. How it is done is the big thing in "The Perfect Alibi," and
audiences seem to relish the appeal
to the mind which the film offers.

But "The Perfect Alibi" has more
action than mental gymnastics, according to the latest reports. And there are excellent players in it, including Audrey Smith, Warwick Ward,
Dorothy Boyd and Robert Lorraine.

"The Magnificent Lie."
Between scenes on the Ruth Chat-
terton set at the Paramount Hollywood studio, Stuart Erwin was leading a discussion on the art of lying.
"There are lies, and lies," said the eager but bewildered comic. "We'll start with the minor degrees of prevarication and work up to the single forms. Now, there's the teenieweenie lie, just a step below the tiny
lie. Everybody can qualify in that class. Then comes the little lie. Lots of people mix the 'little lie' with 'white' and use it dextrously. Fathers, mothers and sweethearts have popularized this form."

"The ordinary big lie and the crazy
lie, I'd rank next. They're very popular with golfers and fishermen."
"How about the darn and the dirty lie?" interposed Sam Hardy.
"I was coming to those two," explained Erwin. "They fit most poker
players when they arrive home and
tell their wives about their winnings
and losses."

"Then there's the huge lie, the
gigantic lie, the tremendous lie, the
colossal lie."

At that moment Miss Chatterton
walked on to the set and Director
Lewis M. Riehl ordered rehearsals
for the next scene in "The Magnificent Lie," her new starring picture,
in which Edwin, Ralph Bellamy and
other talented scene players will be seen at the King's Theatre next Sunday.

"Frankenstein."

Packed to the brim with thrills, and
called by experts the most original film ever to reach the screen, Universal's eerie "Frankenstein" will make its debut at the Central Theatre on Saturday with Colin Clive, Mae Clark, John Holmes and Boris Karloff in the
featured roles.

The extraordinary story of a young
scientist who brought a human monster to life through weird electrical mechanisms and surgery is based upon the fantastic eighteenth century narrative of the same name written by Mary Shelley, wife of the poet.
Karloff, in his characterization of
the man monster, is reported to wear
make-up weighing 48 pounds in itself.
Colin Clive, of "Journey's End" fame,
was brought expressly from London
to enact the scientist, and Dwight
Frye, of "Dracula" plays the important Dwarf of the picture. Edward Van Sloan and Frederick Kerr
complete the cast.

James Whale, the famous Englishman, directed "Frankenstein," and John Balderston, Garrett Fort and Francis Faragol prepared the screen adaptation. Arthur Edison, the well-known cinematographer of "Waterloo Bridge" photographed the picture and Denny Hall, the equally distinguished artist, designed the unusual settings
of the film.

THE COMING U. S. ELECTION

The expected has happened by the re-nomination of Mr. Hoover as Republican candidate for the United States Presidency. The National Convention, in adopting him as the G.O.P. choice, has approved an orthodox platform, save for the "wet" plank. There was a move made to induce the Party leaders to make total repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment their policy, but this was resisted. In fact, it is stated that Mr. Hoover definitely declared that he would not accept nomination on such a platform. So far as can be gathered, the "wet" plank simply declares in favour of amending the Constitution so that States which want to legalise liquor may do so, while "dry" States may continue as at present if they so desire. However, the plank goes into some embellishments, as to the desirability of a permanent ban on the saloon.

Important as the Prohibition issue is, however, the coming election will be fought on larger issues than this. In the course of the campaign, we shall hear much of the intense depression which has settled on the country, and it may be counted on for a certainty that the Democrats will make all the capital they can out of the situation. On the other hand, the Hoover party will stress the worldwide nature of the depression and contend that, in the circumstances, unfavourable reactions were inevitable in the United States, no matter which party happened to be in power. Personalities will count largely in the election, but at the moment there is no definite indication of the Democrats' choice. The candidates appear to be unlimited in number. At one time, it was thought that Al Smith would be the Democratic nominee, but it now seems unlikely that he will again be chosen to carry the banner. His successor in the Governorship of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has latterly been going through the process known as "grooming." As a well-known commentator has observed, he has many qualities which make him conspicuously eligible as candidate. His long years of political service and the prestige of his high office are noteworthy, and it is not surprising that he is the most mentioned amongst the "probables." This, however, does not ensure his nomination. There are many others in the running, notably Owen D. Young, Newton D. Baker, and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, the last-named an ardent advocate of State rights so far as the Prohibition question is concerned.

Democrats as a whole are said to be very hopeful of a change of Administration as a result of the election, but to the outsider it appears that there will need to be greater unity in the party if success is to be attained. On one issue, however, the Democrats are united, and that is in their opposition to high tariffs. If they were to succeed, there would be doubt be an attempt to change the existing tariff legislation of the United States, but it is by no means certain that any sweeping change would result. In the first place, the Democratic majority in Congress might not be large enough even if a Democratic President were to be elected by a large majority. In the second place, it is unlikely that all Democrats would readily agree upon the terms of a Tariff Bill. Tariff-making in 1933 or later would probably be very much like tariff-making in the past, a scramble of Federal legislators on behalf of their constituents' industries. Besides which we must not overlook the difficulties of any nation suddenly renouncing its traditional policies. At this juncture, it would be futile to attempt to forecast the result of the election, as many factors will arise between now and November which may cause a swing one way or the other. But that the contest will be keenly waged there can be no doubt whatever.

Key To Europe's Problems

Lausanne, like every other recent conference, brings Europe back to the conviction that its central problem is that of Franco-German relations. When it is complained that slow progress is made in their amelioration, it should be recalled that the European schism has existed for hundreds of years. When France emerged as an independent power, it found itself at grips with the Austrian Empire and with those northern states which were given the generic title of the Germanies. The division is deep-rooted in the very heart of Europe. It is traditional as well as temperamental. It is historic and hereditary as well as immediate and specific. Those who do not realize the profound character of this opposition of French and German conceptions and ambitions are naturally impatient with the apparently inadequate efforts made by statesmen to bring about a real reconciliation. These facts should be recalled, not to suggest that the task is impossible, or that a transformation cannot quickly take place. The circumstances of modern life and thought are such that the greatest modifications in the relations of peoples are not only feasible but necessary. France and Germany can no longer afford to live apart. Europe can no longer exist if it is torn asunder. The interdependence of the world makes a clean sweep of historic hostilities and age-old cleavages imperative. The past cannot be permitted to thwart the present. But statesmen to-day have to face their problem as though it were a new one. They must state it in modern terms, and, properly stated, without reference to what has gone before, it is relatively simple and is susceptible of speedy solution. Moreover, they know that such solution is essential to their own well-being. The solution is certain because it is essential; but we should not fret if it is not instantaneous. If France and Germany were in agreement British policy would be easy; it would not be required, in the fluctuation of feelings and circumstances, to lean to this or that side. Italian policy, which has always been influenced by the Franco-German division, would entirely

During a visit to a friend, Ng Chiu-kin, of 1, Kai Tak Road, Kowloon City, yesterday, Lai Ho-kai, a married woman of 16, Mosque Junction, was bitten by a dog belonging to her hostess. The victim was treated by Dr. Ma Wan-man, while the dog was sent to Mataluk for observation.

Mr. Alexander Keinschagen, a jockey trainer residing at the Peak Hotel, has reported to the police that some person stole a quantity of clothing from his quarters at the Jockey Club Stables sometime between Saturday and Monday last. The articles stolen were valued at $81.

The Colony's health report for the week ending Saturday, June 18, shows the following causes of infectious diseases and deaths therefrom: Small-pox 2 cases, typhoid 7 cases, 1 death, 1 death, typhoid 1 case, 1 death, 1 death, paratyphoid 1 case, meningitis 4 cases, 1 death. There were also 65 deaths from Pulmonary Tuberculosis. On Monday 2 cases of cholera (imported) and one case of small-pox were also reported.

change. Germany's quarrel with Poland would be appeased. Certain rivalries in the Balkans would be mitigated. Even the menace of Russia, which is often exaggerated for political purposes, would be immensely diminished. In short, were France and Germany truly friends, something like European unity would be achieved. The Franco-German problem is, therefore, paramount. It is the key-problem. In some senses it is the single problem. Attention may turn to this and that phase of European politics, and rightly turn, but such phases depend on Franco-German politics. Here is the problem whose solution will automatically bring in its train a series of minor and subsidiary solutions. Sometimes attempts are made to outflank it, but the time has come when a frontal attack seems to offer the best chances of success.

HONGKONG: HOMO'S FINAL ANALYSIS THE HALCYON HADES THE MARRIED WOMAN

"Here we may reign secure; and in my choice To reign is worth ambition, though in hell, Better to reign in hell, than serve in heaven."

—MILTON.

The most phenomenal development of the past few decades has been the psychodynamic reaction of the Western World's married woman to the consummation of her so-called emancipation and its disruptive significance in relation to human evolution has yet to be realised.

The submissive, altruistic, contentment-radiating wife of a generation back has been lost to civilisation and in her place we are confronted with a vicious, unscrupulous, self-centred autocrat.

Justification for the deplorable transformation has been sought in puerile platitudes—Sex Equality, Protection of the Weak, Liberation of the Domestic Drudge and Modern Broadmindedness—but the ethical and economic disintegration that has already made itself apparent as a result of this sociological innovation, gives the lie direct to woman's would-be vindictors.

Nature has shown little sign of sex prejudice in her provision of human fighting equipment for the evolutionary struggle and while the original balance of power was maintained, humanity advanced towards the fulfilment of its destiny. To the woman was given beauty, modesty, the faculty of sympathetic understanding, intuition, an infinite capacity for suffering and the subtlety of a hound-harried vixen. Man, on the other hand, was endowed with physical strength and courage, judgment, foresight and the vision and the will to yoke the very stars to his quest chariot.

People who rant about sex equality deliberately ignore the most vital of Nature's procreative laws—the gravitation of opposites. Do like magnetic poles attract? Is strength fundamentally antagonistic to weakness? Does the dog return the snarl and snap of an infuriated bitch? Equality! The whole universe owes its cohesion to dissimilarity of characteristics and the further woman advances towards masculinity, the nearer we approach the end of the human race.

Until recent times both sexes have been content to fulfil the functions for which they are naturally adapted and the combination has given mankind his place in the vanguard of creation. In certain directions, however, civilisation has stagnated while in others achievement has been premature; revelations of science have been misapplied like matches in the hands of a school-boy and the beneficent impartiality of Nature's designs has been nullified.

The most efficacious of woman's sex weapons is beauty of form and face and since Adam first became conscious of his Eve's aesthetic appeal, the physically alluring type of womanhood has managed to exert a very potent influence over the destinies of men and even of nations. After all, she was destined to utilise her talents for the purpose of captivation and for centuries past elaborations in dress, carriage and coiffure have been devised simply because man, who has consistently scorned artificiality in his own direction, has shown such hopeless lack of penetration—such inane toleration and impressionability, where its application to woman is concerned. Surreptitious assiduity along these lines had, up till recently, augmented her power over the male to a considerable degree but the balance was not seriously threatened until cosmetic glorifications—seductive masks of paint and powder—were introduced. With such revolutionary fictitious enhancement of her primary sex asset man's days of domination were numbered and moral and intellectual degeneracy became inevitable.

Conditions to-day afford ample corroborative testimony to the male's object surrender and lamentable subversion, but perhaps the most convincing indication lies in recently introduced jurisprudence anomalies for the protection of the interests of the so-called weaker sex. The fullest possible advantage is being taken of every concession, however iniquitous it may appear in its incidence, and in the direction of divorce and verging upon the ludicrous.

To make the position still more precarious physical strength and courage, man's sex artillery have been rendered innocuous; he has spiked his own guns from an exaggerated, misguided sense of chivalry while woman, ever obdurate and perfidious, was clandestinely rushing her mercenary reinforcements up to the battle-front. Man's sagacity and prudence have, moreover, been undermined by "the devil's power to assume a pleasing shape" and the day is fast approaching when the intellectually inferior sex assumes unchallengeable control and drags humanity into a veritable hell on earth and ultimate extinction.

"An hour may lay it in the dust."

Even the present industrial and financial catenacisms have their origins in woman's malefic ascendancy. The modern siren lives exclusively for emotional exhilaration and only those who are in the position to cater for her insatiable materialistic cravings and favour in her jaundiced sight. And her desires know no bounds, for—

"She never lives but she hopes to live And always disposing herself to be happy."

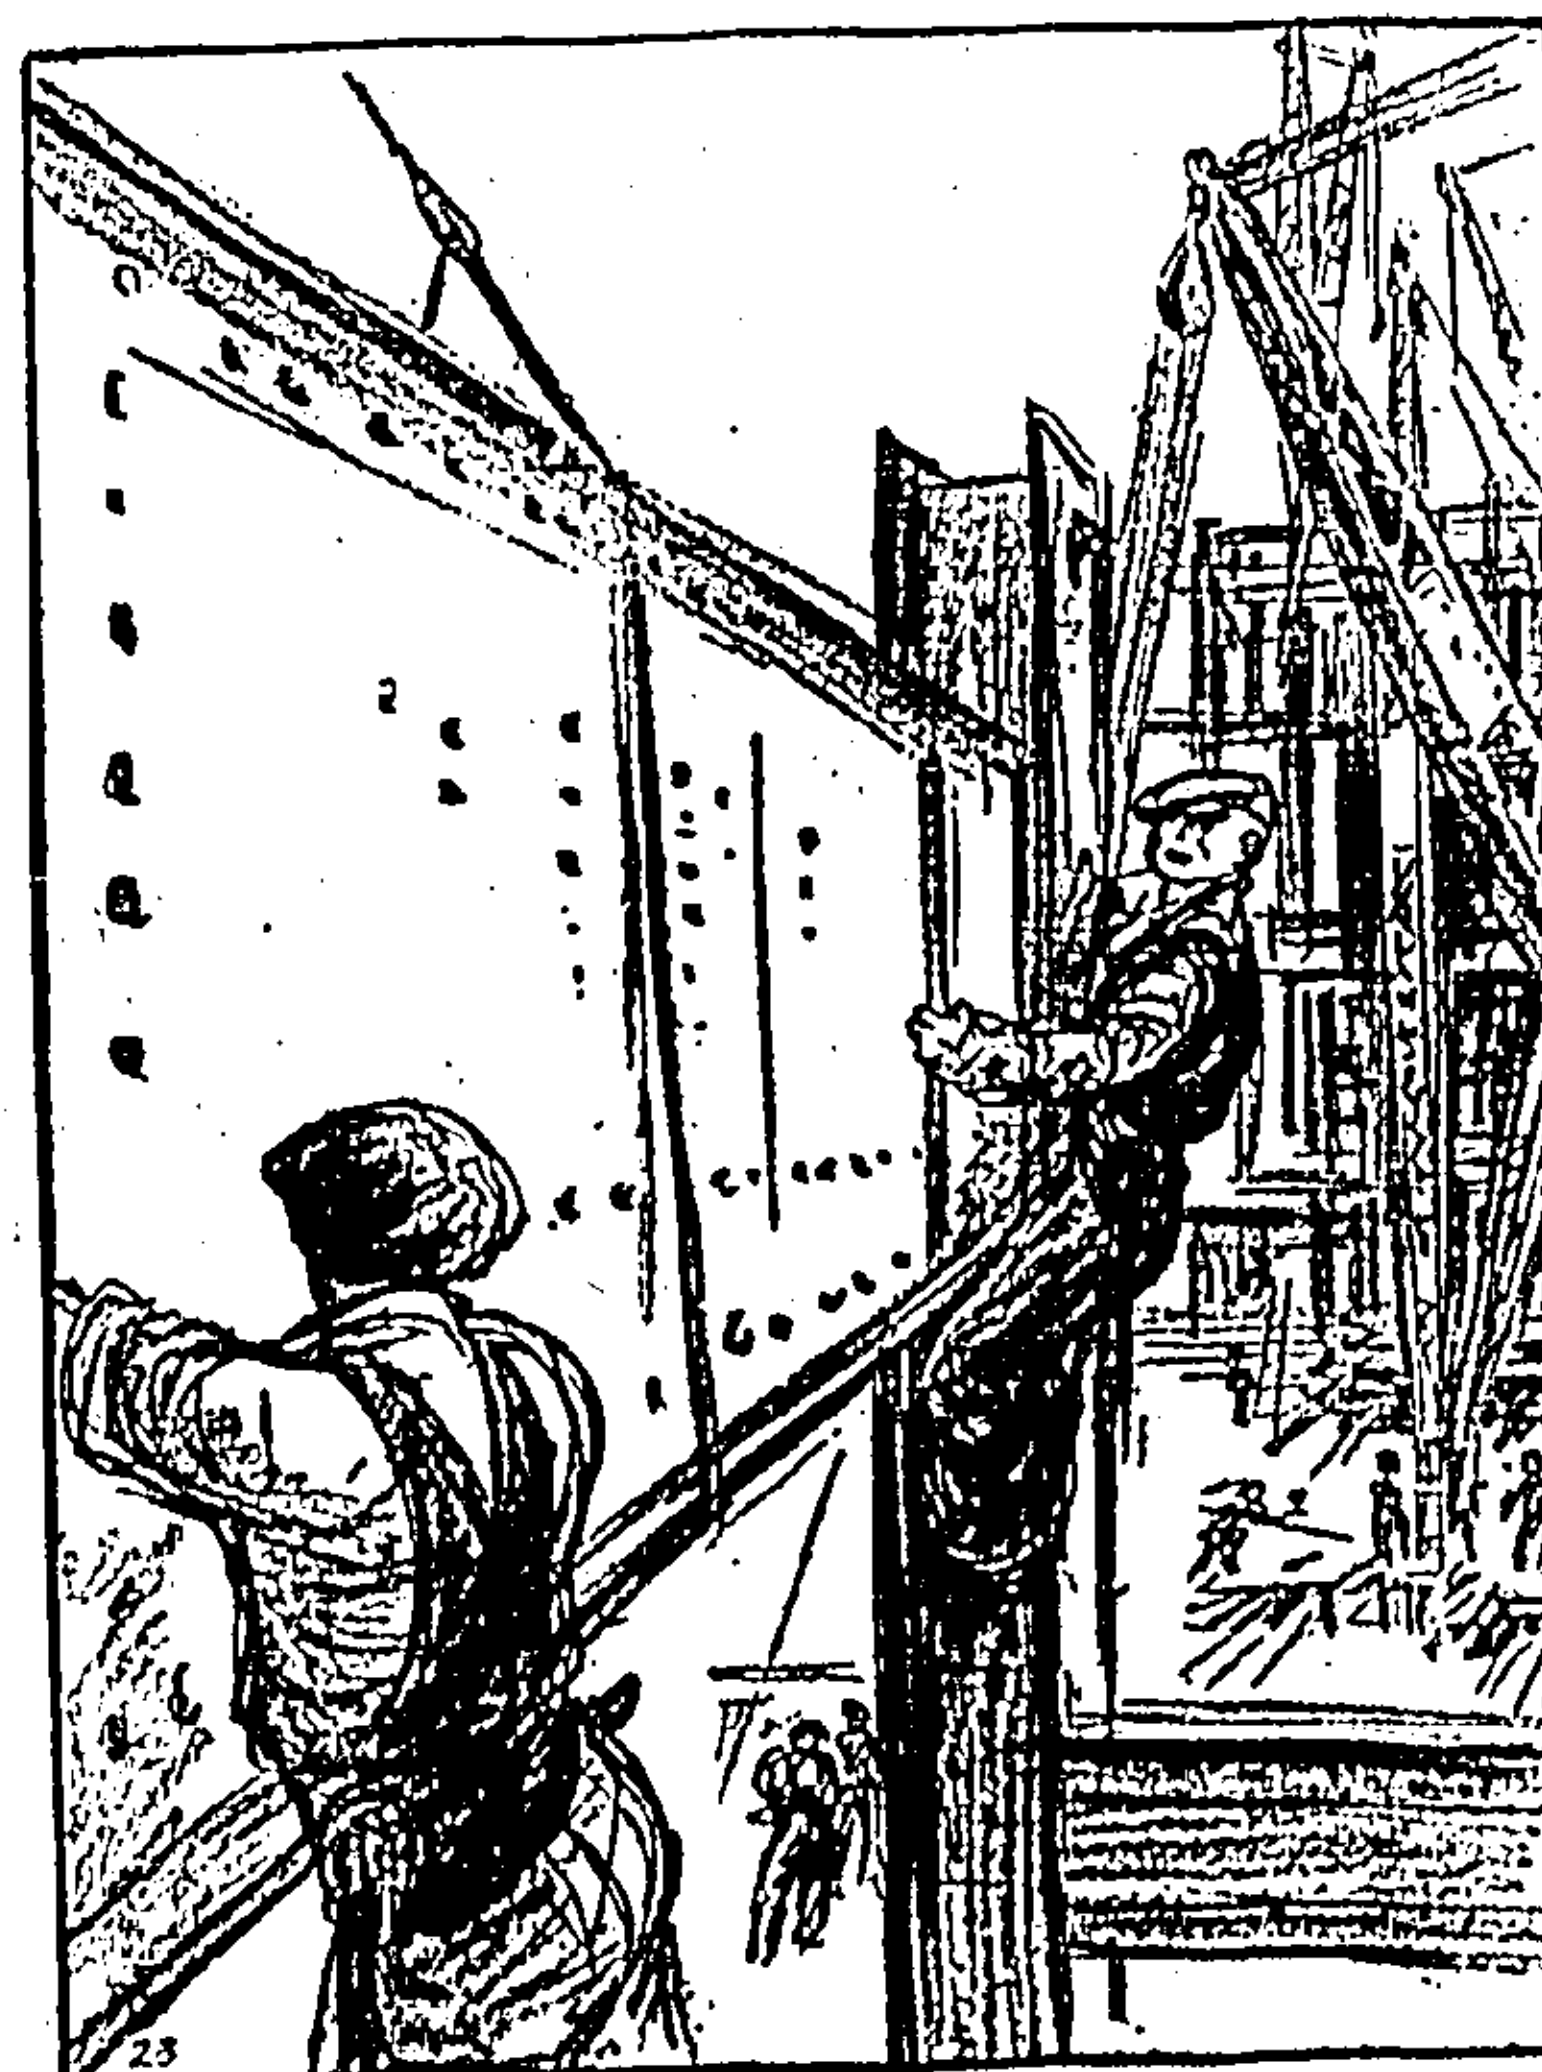

The nobler aspiration of man—his eternal reaching out to find "the happiness that is everywhere and whose spring is in his own heart"—have been usurped by a frenzied, lust for nefarious feminine beauty and he exists to-day for the sole purpose of acquiring the mundane wealth that is indispensable to the attainment of his ignoble objective. Men are toiling, lying, thieving and killing for monetary gain to an extent unprecedented in human history and competition, individual and national, has become so acute that the whole structure of civilisation is now in imminent danger of crashing into an imponderable abyss of world-war, revolution and anarchy.

Within the past quarter century scientific research has brought undreamed-of expansion and improvement in productive facilities but this omnivorous, cankerous crux for wealth and power has frustrated essential concomitant progress in economic organisation. Industrial investment and financial speculation, the twin abortions conceived by the mal-distributed issue of labour's sweat and blood, have brought along inevitable overproduction and though the world to-day clearly perceives that its only possible salvation lies in increased purchasing power relative to productive expansion, it is making no attempt whatever to withdraw from this desperate insensate scramble for rapidly diminishing prospects of wealth acquisition.

The industrial ship is foundering, its crew has deliberately renounced co-operative action, wherein lies safety for all, and in blind panic is tearing asunder the few remaining life-belts. And to woman alone can be attributed the demoralisation. She has thrust her sex appeal into the vessel's propulsion and navigation departments and by her baneful seductivity has introduced widespread discord and hostility among men who, left to themselves and their vocations, would have striven in unison towards the attainment of their voyage's laudable objective.

Hongkong lends itself only too readily to the married woman's supremacy campaign and her subversive influence is indisputably demonstrated by the prevalence of incorrigible apathy among the men-folk where all progressive thought and activity is concerned. Femininity is reflected in every phase of the Colony's organic existence; administrative and commercial undertakings are entirely devoid of competence, much less enterprise; and time and ability that should be devoted to the

OF MACAOWARM WELCOME ON ARRIVAL

FUTURE WORK

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, June 21. Considerable enthusiasm marked the arrival of His Excellency Lieut. Colonel Antonio Jose Bernades de Miranda, Governor of Macao, who accompanied by Madame Miranda and their children, arrived in Macao from Hongkong aboard the cruiser Adamastor.

The new Governor, who is accompanied by Captain Jose da Cruz, as A. D. C., and Lieut. Pedro da Rocha as Private Secretary, was received at the landing stage in the new port at Macao by a very large gathering.

Dr. J. Magalhães, Officer Administering the Government, introduced Col. Miranda to the leading citizens and Government officials and then drove off for a short tour of Macao, repatriating the Municipal Council where the picturesque ceremony of handing the key of the city was carried out in the presence of a very large gathering.

CORDIAL WELCOME.

After speeches of welcome by Dr. J. Magalhães and by Mr. Henrique Nolasco da Silva, Chairman of the Municipal Council, in the course of which several aspects of the Colony's problems were dwelt upon, His Excellency replied at length.

After expressing thanks for the cordial welcome extended to him, Colonel Miranda said, "I expect that all of you assembled here to-day are waiting to hear what I propose to do after I have assumed the post of Governor of Macao. I could tell you that I had a big programme, but that would not be a fair thing to say. A programme is easy to draw up but it is never so easy to carry out. I will confine myself to a few general remarks."

In the first place, I shall expect to see the law complied with in its spirit. I shall also try to secure for the people of Macao that which is just to which they aspire to, but also request the people of Macao to co-operate with me for the development and prosperity of the colony.

GOODWILL NEEDED.

We must all apply ourselves with intensity to the resolution of the problems to be solved. I suppose that there may be some innovations, and reorganisation and even simplification of work. All this requires time for careful planning. There are special needs in Macao, but with harmonious working on the part of every one and with good will, we can all achieve magnificent results. All this is not as easy as it has been to say it. There is much work to be done, and it is totally impossible for me to carry on my own shoulders all the load. I look to the people of Macao to help me with loyal and active co-operation and with everyone working as I shall expect you all to work, we will forge ahead.

THE FATHERLAND.

It is well for us to remember that without work and organisation nothing useful or durable will result. Let me also remind you that it is not I that call on you to help it is the Fatherland that wants all of you to work together.

I ask you to salute the Fatherland and do homage to old Portugal, and I ask you to join me in a "Viva" to the noble chief of State, a man who is the personification of our race, who has carried Portugal through times of great stress, who has succeeded by a policy of well-defined good government in helping his Fatherland, Viva to Portugal! Viva General Carmona!

TIN RESTRICTION

SCHEME

London, June 21. A meeting of the International Tin Committee in London to-day was followed by the issue of a communiqué stating that the signatory governments had accepted the scheme known as the modified Byrne Scheme.

The scheme provides that the production of metal in July and August shall cease or be controlled and that thereafter, the ore or metal so controlled will be released at the rate of ten per cent. monthly for ten months.

The plan also provides that the new aggregate from July 1 be reduced at the rate of 17,040 tons yearly below the existing quotas to 54,066 tons.

The scheme will be put into effect on July 1.—Reuter.

Sir Henry's questions are as follows:

1. What measures do you recommend should be adopted by the Government for the prevention of the spread of cholera from Canton to Hongkong?

2. Is there a sufficiency, in this Colony, of (i) anti-cholera serum, (ii) other anti-cholera remedies and medicines? If not, what steps do you recommend should be taken by the Government for remedying such deficiencies, if any?

WARNING ISSUED.

The Sanitary Department to-day issues a warning to the public of the possibility of contracting cholera from eating uncooked vegetables and fruit.

LOCAL DENTIST
CASEAN APPLICATION FOR REHEARING

An application for rehearing of the case in which Kwong Chouk was convicted on a summons for holding himself out as a qualified dentist and was fined $200 last Wednesday, was made by Mr. Hin-shing Lo before Mr. Schofield this morning. Mr. Lo desired that certain additional facts be heard. The court was asked to reconsider the previous decision with the view to a reduction of the penalty already imposed.

At the previous hearing, Mr. Lo said, it was alleged that the defendant produced a card bearing the name of James Mak, giving rise to the natural impression in the mind of the Police Officer that he set himself out as James Mak. The other point was that a report had appeared of the proceedings in Court giving the impression that because of a visit made to the same dentist, a European sailor had suffered septic tonsillitis and had died.

In regard to the first point, he would call upon the defendant to say what he had omitted to say previously, that James Mak was his employer, who had died only two days before the Police Officer's visit, leaving his family unprovided for and his business interests to be watched by his widow. The card bearing the deceased's name was produced with the object of its serving as the business address for the Police Officer who was to have called again.

Counsel stressed that at the last hearing the defendant, of course, denied that he ever extracted the tooth of the unfortunate European who later succumbed to septic tonsillitis.

The case is proceeding.

MILK BOTTLE
THEFTSFOUR LADS CHARGED
AT KOWLOON

Four Chinese lads, described as apprentice carpenters in a shop in Canton Road, were brought before Mr. Fraser, at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning, charged with theft of a number of milk bottles belonging to the Dairy Farm Company and a Chinese company.

It was stated that the lads were asked to deliver some canphor-wood boxes to the Police Training School yesterday, and when they were in Nathan Road, a Chinese detective stopped them and found the bottles inside the boxes.

All the defendants denied theft, and stated that an amah met them in the street and gave them the bottles.

Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, who represented the Chinese company, said he would like to find out where the defendants were taking the bottles. His clients had been losing quite a large number of these bottles lately, and as they had to spend about $2,500 annually for bottles, they would like to get to the bottom of the affair.

Defendants stuck to their story of having been given the bottles by an amah.

Holiday Suggestion.

(To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.)

Sir,—In view of the fact that the first week-day in July is to be a general and public holiday, may I, through the medium of your paper, suggest to the powers that be, that falling as it does this year on a Friday, the following Saturday may also be declared a day "off"?

By foregoing the three hours or so on Saturday forenoon, many a resident whose nerves have been shattered by a fickle June with days alternated with steamy heat, rain and fog, would be given an excellent opportunity of having three uninterrupted days in which to regain his lost vitality by disporting himself without any care or hindrance (not necessarily in a nudist) in some breezy seaside resorts or by taking a short sea trip to a neighbouring port.

Moreover I feel sure that the banking establishments would welcome this suggestion as it would give their staff a spell of three unbroken days, free from public interruptions to cope with their half yearly balances.—Yours, etc.,

RAGGED NERVES.

Found in possession of no put tickets to the value of $1,400, a Chinese woman was fined $1,000 before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning. It was stated that the defendant was arrested on information.

CARGO THEFT

An application for the withdrawal of a plea of guilty which had been entered by his client was made by Mr. C.Y. Kwan before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning when the case in which five boat people are charged in connexion with the pilfering of cargo consigned to Kayamally & Co., was again before his Worship.

At the previous hearing three men who are charged with theft of silks and velvet to the value of $1,245 pleaded guilty, while two women accused of receiving stolen property denied the charges.

Mr. Kwan, appearing on behalf of the first defendant, asked permission to withdraw the plea of guilty. He remarked that he had been instructed since the last hearing and after going into the case had advised his client to plead not guilty.

Mr. Kwan also applied for bail, but Detective Sergeant Fitches, for the police, raised an objection on account of the amount involved and also because of an epidemic of pilfering cases which had been reported recently.

His Worship remarked that the defendant was entitled to bail, although the circumstances might mean substantial bail.

Detective Sergeant Fitches, in reply to his Worship, said the police could prove that the first defendant was the principal in the affair. He was not the master of a cargo boat, as he had claimed, but was a foki and a relative of the master. Kayamally & Co. engaged the first defendant to convey cargo for them and on June 16 the firm was informed that there were three cases of cloth awaiting delivery at the Kowloon Godowns. The first defendant was requested to take delivery of the goods. He went to the godowns some time between 8 and 9 o'clock on June 16. He did not use his own boat as had been his practice, but engaged a boat belonging to the second and third defendants. The cases were not delivered at Kayamally & Co. until 2 o'clock in the afternoon and when they were opened it was found that two of the cases contained coal and sacks.

The cases were opened after the defendant had left, but he was located the same night. After being interrogated by the police, he was allowed to go but was later sent for and charged. Enquiries were made and the goods were found on board a boat on which the fourth and fifth defendants were employed. The second and third defendants were arrested on the information of the first.

The second thrill of the day at Wimbledon was provided by Miss Kathleen Stammers, the extremely youthful British hope, who has suddenly shot to the front rank of British lady players, without succeeding in establishing for herself a place in the Wightman Cup team.

To-day, she caused a considerable surprise by defeating the American challenger, Mrs. L. A. Harper, by two sets to one after losing the first rather badly. She recovered brilliantly and earned a well-deserved victory.

The merit of the performance may be gauged from the fact that Mrs. L. A. Harper was ranked No. 3 to Mrs. Williams-Moody and Miss Jacobs in the American 1931 ranking and in 1930, when Helen was out of the game for some time, Mrs. Harper was ranked America's No. 1.

To-day, the young English hope caused her supporters spirits to fade by losing the first set at 6-1, but attacking with remarkable judgment, Miss Stammers took the second set at 6-0 and the third after twelve games.

Mrs. Helen Williams-Moody had an easy passage into the second round.

Among the men who qualified for this round of the singles were Ian Collins (Britain), Ellsworth Vines (America), Borotra (France), F. J. Perry (Britain), Jack Crawford (Australia).

Results: Ian Collins beat Henri Cochet, 6-2, 8-6, 6-3.

Mild Clay beat Bill (Britain), 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

Hopman (Australia) beat Malfroy (N.Z.), 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

F. X. Shields (U.S.) beat P. Grandguillot, 6-1, 6-3, 6-7.

Miss Stammers beat Mrs. Harper, 1-6, 6-0, 7-5.

MAKE IT A REAL "OPEN" EVENT

By "VERITAS"

ONE OF THE MOST CONSTRUCTIVE, and, allowing for certain eventualities, the most practical, ideas put forward on behalf of local tennis, was contained in the tentative suggestion made to the Hongkong Lawn Tennis Association by Mr. Denis Hazell when he gave his broadcast talk on Monday evening.

There is without doubt a great need for the local tennis championships to become more "open" in character; not only is new blood required, but it should also, if possible, offer a definitely higher standard of play than is to be found among our present leaders of tennis in Hongkong. To be assured of this it is necessary that the best players from Shanghai, Malaya, Indo-China and the Philippines should take part in the championships.

Unfortunately the existing methods on which the championships are run practically rule out any hopes of "outside" competition. To ask a player from any of the northern or southern ports to forsake his business for three months just for the privilege of playing tennis is quite beyond the bounds of practicability; and it is because participation in our local championship has involved this sacrifice, in the past that we have never enjoyed the presence of such exponents as Aragon from the Philippines, Lim Bong-soon, Roy Smith, from Singapore, Gordon Lum and Tawara from Shanghai, and many other notable players.

THE REMEDY.

But there does appear to be a remedy for this in Mr. Hazell's suggestion. As he very rightly, and rather significantly, pointed out, from the 82 entrants in the championships last February it would be difficult to select a dozen who would have the remotest chance of figuring in the final. Actually it can be reduced to six at the outside; they are, S. A. Rumi, E. C. Fincher, Honda, M. W. Lo, Tsui Wai-pui, J.A.E. Cassimboy and H. D. Rumi. Assisted by such a fact it does seem fairly obvious that the only way in which to make the tournament additionally interesting is to stage an eliminating contest, and confine the championship proper to, at the most, 32 players. This, as was indicated on Monday evening, would allow the championship to be finished within a fortnight, and would, undoubtedly, make possible participation by the leading players of the North and South.

In addition, I am confident, it would help to eliminate one or two tendencies which tend rather to rob the championships of their full glamour and appeal. TOURNAMENT TAKES TOO LONG. Although the tournaments this year were completed in almost record time, yet I do not hesitate to assert that they covered too long a period. Whilst taking full cognisance of peculiar local conditions, I feel that there are features in the organisation of the Men's Championships in Hongkong which compare very unfavourably with any open tournament in England.

In the first place they are held at the wrong time of the year, inviting as they do at present, disturbance and retardance through wet weather. Surely the autumn is the ideal time for the year for the championship? The players, through participation in league tennis during the summer would be in good practice, and in addition would not be called upon to enter straightaway into competitive tennis after some four months absence from the courts.

Secondly the early rounds take far too long to complete. In England, where there are entry lists of anything up to 150 to 200 players, a tournament consisting of four open events and probably four to six handicap events, is finished within six days. The fact that play is continuous from 11 a.m. to sunset daily does not greatly alter the local position. BIGGER DAILY PROGRAMMES. It is fairly obvious to anyone familiar with the organisation of the Hongkong championships that the absolute maximum numbers of matches at present played during one day is nine. Generally speaking it is six or seven. Surely there is plenty of means of improving upon this? The Hongkong Cricket Club, upon whose ground the championships have in the past been conducted, do not attempt to take "gates" for matches in the first three rounds. They would therefore be losing nothing if, during this period, additional matches to those which the Cricket Club ground could stage, were arranged and allowed to be played on other courts. Neutral courts could doubtless be obtained, strictness enforced in respect to the playing of the match on the scheduled date, and a rule imposed that all results of matches played outside of the precincts of the Cricket Club to be handed in at the clubhouse later than the following morning. AN ADDITIONAL ADVANTAGE. An additional advantage to be derived from this system of an eliminating tournament would be the encouragement it offers to the young ambitious and progressive player, who, although probably quite a useful exponent, has, through the existing methods of conducting the championship, every chance of running up against one of the leading players and of having his hopes squashed in the first round. Success breeds confidence and if a player knows he is liable to meet, in the early rounds, players of his own calibre, with definite chances of advancing to a later stage in the competition, he is going to enter the tournament more effectively armed than if he knew, with the presence of the first grade players, his "life" in the championship was going to be limited to a couple of rounds at the outside.

L. T. A. MUST ACT.

The L. T. A. is still without its "home," and indications are that it will remain so for some considerable time. This means that the organisation of the championships (Men's singles and doubles) will remain in the hands of the Hongkong Cricket Club. The Club has heretofore, formulated its own bye-laws to govern the competition, and scanty as they have been, they have apparently proved sufficient to meet the requirements of the tournament.

The position to-day however, is somewhat different to that of, say, three years ago. There now exists a properly recognised Lawn Tennis Association, whose objects, the control and maintenance of local championships, competitions, interport and exhibition tennis matches, have been accepted by its affiliated members, which includes the Hongkong Cricket Club.

It would seem then, that although the Association must remain under obligation to the Cricket Club for the maintenance of the Men's championships, in so far that the Club's ground is the only one available and suitable for such an event, it has the power to set up rules to govern such a competition, and there seems no reason why the L.T.A., should not, if it so desires, introduce a new system for conducting the tournament on the lines set out above, or in any other manner thought fit by the Association.

ONUS OF INITIATIVE.

I am not suggesting the Association acts in an arbitrarily way regarding this. The Association and the Cricket Club have worked amicably together over the championships for the last two years, and there is no reason why changes of any sort should cause a rift in the lute.

Nevertheless the onus to take the initiative in a matter such as this is upon the Lawn Tennis Association, as the governing body of the game in Hongkong. Its rulings in all matters affecting local competitive tennis, if carrying with them the majority opinion of the Council, must be accepted, and if the Association feels that there is room for some sort of change in the organisation of the championships in the Colony, then it is now in the correct position to effect those alterations. The very least which can be said for Mr. Hazell's suggestion is that it is worthy of official exploration.

ANDREW SANDHAM, the Surrey batsman, who not only hit up 215 against Somerset, but assisted Hobbs in putting on 264 runs for the first wicket.

SPLENDID GOLF IN BRITISH "OPEN"

Sandwich, June 10. Playing consistent and superb golf, Gene Sarazen, the 31-year-old Italian-American, won the British open golf championship with five strokes to spare and so carried back to America the chief British golf title for the ninth year in succession. Sarazen's wonderful total of 283 strokes is two better than the figures of the remarkable Bobby Jones at St. Andrews in 1927. The American was amazingly consistent with his iron shots. His brilliant play attracted an enormous gallery of 5,000 spectators for the final round.

BEST GOLF OF CAREER.

Sarazen has made a continuous bid for the British title, but until today he was unsuccessful. He likes the Prince's course, for it suits the powerful game he plays. It is sometimes called the most difficult course in Europe, a course which, with prevailing high winds, puts a premium on long iron play. This year, in America, Sarazen was said to be playing the best golf of his career and during the last three days he has confirmed it. He has been called the "pocket Hercules" for he hits the ball terrifically hard. It is interesting to note that he remains one of the very few big golfers in the world who still uses the old-fashioned interlocking grip.

The only Englishman who came within striking distance of the remarkable figures of Sarazen was Arthur Havers, the only British contender to carry off the open title since 1921. Havers was 145 for two rounds and to-day he broke the course record with a truly magnificent 68, which brought him within four strokes of the American. Sarazen was first round this afternoon and returned a 74, thus leaving Havers the almost impossible task of getting a 69 after his record-breaking 68. Havers failed to do it and (Continued on Page 9.)

BATSMEN SCORE AT WILL IN MANY DRAWN GAMES

London, June 22. Huge aggregates and numbers of splendid individual scores were registered in homeside cricket during the past three days. Only a few encounters finished with a definite result, Kent figuring among the teams who secured the full complement of points.

Hobbs scored his third successive century, and Sandham hit up 215 against Somerset. Three centuries were made in the Test Trial, where the South had the better of a drawn game.

E. D. ANDREWS TO PAY RETURN VISIT.

Prominent Tennis Player Due Here in September.

E. D. Andrews, the British International Club player and ex-singles champion of New Zealand, who visited Hongkong last year and gave exhibition matches, is returning on another business trip to the Far East this autumn.

He is due to arrive in Hongkong in early September, and will probably remain in the Colony for some little time. Andrews was so impressed with his first visit, that there is small doubt of him again playing exhibition tennis, although he will be denied the opportunity of taking his revenge on C.A.L. Krumpholtz, who last year sensationally defeated the New Zealander.

Notts met Gloucester, but his efforts only reaped a partial reward, Notts having to rest content with first innings points. Staples scored 121 in the Notts innings, which closed at 387, and followed this up by dismissing Gloucester with the aid of Sam Staples for 257. Arthur Staples took five wickets for 95 runs and his brother 5 for 68. Dacre played a magnificent foreing innings for Gloucester scoring 109. Notts batsmen assumed the ascendancy a second time, and the closure was applied at 183 for one wicket, but Gloucester played out time scoring 161 for 2 wickets.

D.R. WILCOX 112

Century for Cambridge Against Sussex at Hove

D.R. Wilcox scored a century for Cambridge against Sussex when these teams played a drawn match at Hove. Sussex put on 316 in their first knock to which Cambridge replied with 305. The county team declared their second innings at 265 for 6, and Cambridge, batting strongly, finished up with 182 runs on the board for the loss of 4 wickets.

AMAR SINGH'S BOWLING

All India Beat Worcester by Three Wickets
A splendid bowling feat was accomplished by Amar Singh against Worcester, when he captured seven wickets for 73 runs. The county team compiled 294 at the first time of asking the Nawab of Pataudi contributing 83. The Indians topped this by three runs, Nazir Ali (56) and Lal Singh (52) doing the scoring. Worcester's second knock realised only 210, and with Naldu (61) and Nazir Ali (56) batting well, the Indians secured the necessary runs with ease.

DR. BASTO ASKS FOR INFORMATION

Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto asked the following questions at the meeting of the Sanitary Board yesterday:

1. Will the Head of the Sanitary Department kindly inform this Board whether any precautions have been taken to prevent the spread of Cholera from Canton into this Colony?

2. If the answer is in the affirmative, will he please state for the information of the Board, which are the steps that have so far been taken in this direction?

3. If the answer is in the negative, will he consider the advisability of doing so immediately?

The Chairman, Mr. G. R. Sayer, requested him to bring up the questions at the next meeting, after giving due notice of them.

Advice Of The M. O. H.

Three cases of cholera, one of them fatal, have been reported in Hongkong since Saturday. All were imported cases from Canton.

During the week-end the body of a Chinese was found on the Tung On Steamship Company's wharf. An examination showed that death had been due to cholera.

When interviewed yesterday, the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. G. W. Pope, said there was no cause for local panic, but a few simple precautions should be taken. Fruit should be thoroughly washed before being eaten, he said, and uncooked vegetables should not be eaten on any account.

"The biggest cholera epidemics have been water-borne," he added, "and on that account, I think we can feel much safer than Canton."

When asked if any quarantine restrictions were being imposed, Dr. Pope said this was a matter which was entirely the concern of the Government.

MACAO GOVERNOR ARRIVES.

ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE AND FAMILY

His Excellency Lieut. Colonel A. J. B. Miranda, the new Governor of Macao, arrived in Hongkong yesterday by the M.M. liner Felix Roussel.

Senhor Miranda visited Government House immediately after his arrival yesterday, and met His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, and Mrs. Southern.

He left for Macao at noon yesterday by the Portuguese gunboat Adamastor, to take up his appointment.

He is accompanied by his wife, son and daughter, and by his official staff, consisting of Capt. J. C. Ribeiro, A.D.C., and Lts. J. M. Brito and V. L. Correla, and by his private secretary, Dr. P. da Rocha.

Among those to meet His Excellency upon the arrival of the Felix Roussel were Director Dias Costa (Treasury Secretary), Lieut. B. Abreu (A.D.C.) and the Acting Portuguese Consul in Hongkong, Mr. C. A. de Roza.

Senhor Miranda will relieve Dr. J. Magalhaes, the Colonial Secretary of Macao, who is at present the Acting Governor.

AMERICA TAKES STRONG ATTITUDE

Tokyo, June 21.
The Japanese Government has received a communication from the U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, saying that if the Manchukuo Government carries out its reported plan for Customs autonomy and establishes its own service under a Japanese Inspector General, it would destroy the integrity of the Chinese Maritime Customs and violate the spirit of the Nine Power treaty, in the maintenance of which the United States Government is vitally interested.—Reuter.

Seeking Solution.

Tokyo, June 22.
It is learned on good authority that the Japanese Government has decided to exert its good offices for an amicable solution of the question of the Dairen customs, and proposed calling a conference of the powers' Ministers and China for the purpose of seeking a solution. They suggest earmarking an amount necessary for the repayment of foreign loans, while the remainder will be divided between the Chinese Maritime Customs and the Manchukuo Government.—Reuter.

LOCAL GARBAGE COLLECTION

QUESTIONS ASKED IN SANITARY BOARD

A meeting of the Sanitary Board was held yesterday afternoon, with Mr. G. R. Sayer, the President, in the chair, other present being the Hon. Mr. H. T. Crensy, Dr. G. W. Pope, M.O.H., Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, Mr. M. K. Lo, Dr. R. A. Castro Basto, Mr. L. C. Bellamy, Dr. Li Shu-fan, Mr. C. F. Champkin, Mr. J. H. Gelling (secretary), and Mr. J. C. Lang, (assistant secretary).

Mr. M. K. Lo's questions about the local garbage problem were the main item on the agenda.

Mr. Lo asked:

"Will the Head of the Sanitary Department be good enough to make a statement, for the information of the Board, showing the arrangements now in force for the removal of refuse by refuse lorries; in particular showing the time at which the lorries go round in the city and residential districts for the collection of refuse and explaining why—if such be the fact—the removal of refuse could not, like the removal of night soil, take place at night?"

"In the statement will the Head of the Sanitary Department state what precautions are being taken to minimise the nuisance caused by lorries, filled to capacity with refuse, going through busy thoroughfares, and whether any instructions have been issued to the officers in charge of the lorries not to station the lorries for the purpose of refuse collection, outside tea or eating houses or shops in which food is exposed for sale?"

"If no such instructions have been given, will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider the advisability of issuing the same?"

Chairman's Reply.

Replying to the points in detail, the Chairman said:

(1) At what times do the refuse lorries go round the city and residential districts for the collection of refuse?

Household refuse from the Peak is removed at night. Elsewhere the lorries go out daily between 5 and 5.30 a.m. completing their tour at about 5 p.m.

(2) Is refuse removed at night and, if not, why not?

Except on the Peak, refuse is not removed at night. It is considered essential that there should be two collections in the town proper in the 24 hours; and at least one must necessarily be by day. A night collection has been tried and abandoned, the lack of light militating greatly against efficient clearance.

(3) What precautions are being taken to minimise the nuisance caused by lorries, filled to capacity with refuse, going through busy thoroughfares?

The provision, so far as possible, of dust-boat stations on the sea front at convenient points so as to avoid long journeys through the streets; and the general instruction to delay as little as possible 'en route' to these stations.

A General Instruction.

(4) Have any instructions been issued not to station lorries outside eating houses and, if not, will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider the advisability of issuing the same?

HON. MR. CREASY'S DEPARTURE.

TRIBUTE TO HIS WORK IN THE SANITARY BOARD

Before the meeting of the Sanitary Board terminated yesterday afternoon, the Chairman, Mr. G. R. Sayer, made a reference to the impending departure of the Hon. Mr. H. T. Crensy, the Director of Public Works.

In doing so, he said that he was sure the Board would not like to let the opportunity slip of saying a few words of farewell to Mr. Crensy. One aspect of Mr. Crensy's connexion with the Board he would like to refer to.

Mr. Crensy had been connected with the Board for the last nine years, and during that time the number of occasions he had not been able to attend its meetings could be counted on the fingers of one hand.

He would like to place on record Mr. Crensy's valuable services to the Board.

Hon. Mr. Crensy's Reply.

The Hon. Mr. Crensy, replying, said:

I have to thank the President for his kind reference to my work whilst I have had the honour of being a member and of Vice-President of this Board, with which I have been associated since 1923.

It has always been a great pleasure to co-operate with my colleagues in the work of the Board, and though perhaps we have not always seen eye to eye as to the best method of attaining a desired end, that end has always been the same view of the advancement and betterment of the conditions under which the citizens of Hongkong have to live. I wish the Board every success in all their endeavours to improve existing conditions.

Chinese Appreciation.

Mr. Wong Kwong-tin said: Sir, being senior Chinese member of this Board, I wish to say a few words before the departure of Mr. Crensy. We regret very much to lose the Hon. Mr. Crensy. We enjoyed very much working with him. His position is difficult to replace, as his advice to this Board is of sterling quality. I have worked with him for a year in this Board and we have had hot arguments, but we all enjoyed it. I have nothing more to add but to wish that Mr. Crensy will live long and enjoy a well-earned pension.

There is a general instruction that lorries are to halt only just sufficiently long to assist householders to fulfil their obligations under the Scavenging By-laws. No discrimination against eating houses and similar establishments, having or hypothecated, more than the average amount of fresh food on the premises and in consequence more than the average amount of organic refuse, would appear, if anything, to have a special claim on the lorries for assistance in removing such refuse as rapidly and frequently as possible.

Oh, dear, she had hurt his feelings again. The slow colour suffused his cheek and stained his neck. Susan hastened to make amends.

"I am sorry. But honestly, I hadn't the least idea."

His eyes burned into hers. "I knew the first time I saw you that you were the girl for me. Sorta fine—I thought—d'you know what I mean—I thought you were incorruptible. I liked that."

He gripped the ears again, leaning forward in his eagerness.

"Don't answer me now. You can't decide that kind of thing all of a sudden. Take your time. I'm not a bad sort. I—I'd be good to you. I don't think your aunt would mind."

Mystified, Susan asked what made him think that.

"Oh, that night I had a little talk with her she seemed to think you were—well—too pretty to work downtown among all those millionaires and so on. She seemed to think it would be better if you were settled down."

"I never heard of such a thing," murmured Susan, scandalized. Ben nodded heavily.

"That's what she said," he corroborated.

They drifted back to the landing almost in silence. The sun was slipping downward now. The park had lost its pristine look of glory and had become just a city playground with a litter of papers on its surface.

Ben handed her out of the boat with chivalrous care.

WITNESS CLOSELY

application made?—Yes, the application was made by a solicitor. On the application made by the solicitor you were released?—Yes.

Did any of them, Zimmer or Christie, say whether they made statements themselves?—Yes.

They told you under what circumstances they came to make those statements?—Yes.

How?—They said they had been up in Canton and that when they came down they were arrested and made those statements.

Did they say how they came to make those statements?—They told me very little about that.

Was Cheng's name brought into it?—Yes.

In what way?—Zimmer said the "fourth brother" had told the Police all about this matter and advised me not to be so foolish as to keep back anything.

The fourth brother is the accused?—Yes.

Do you know it was a fact that Cheng, the accused, has never been asked a single question by the Police?—I don't know.

Did Zimmer tell you that the fourth brother had told the Police everything? Now, you kept nothing back, did you?—I kept nothing back.

And you told all the facts as they occurred that night?—Yes.

Re-Examined.

Re-examined by the Public Prosecutor:

Now, this remark made in the car when the crowd was seen outside the Yung Wo Nursing Home. No one else besides you said "I wonder what is up?"—Yes.

Who else?—Zimmer.

Then, as to those two Chinese who passed the car whilst you were waiting outside 60, Village Road, what type of men did they appear to be?—Ordinary people.

What sort of ordinary people, coolies?—Middle class people.

I think in answer to my friend you appeared to say that somebody suspected them although you didn't?—I did not suspect them, Zimmer did.

It is possible, do you think, the accused Cheng might have made the same remark after the car started to Zimmer about the "Lead of Death"?—I did not hear that.

I didn't ask you whether you heard it? I asked you if it's possible that it was heard?—I personally did not hear it.

How many times previous to that night did accused give you presents of money?—About three times.

He ever gave you as much as $10 before?—No.

What was the biggest sum ever previously given you?—Round about $5.

Did he give you as much as $5?—He did.

The Statements.

Now you said, quite correctly, it was on Friday week after this affair that you were brought up and had your first statement made?—Yes.

Was that a long or short statement?—A very short and rough statement.

The second statement, what about that on the next day?—But I was sent for again on Friday night for further questioning.

I am talking to you about the statement taken from you the next

STOKER KILLED.*STEAM PIPE BURSTS ON LAUNCH SAI KUNG

A fatal accident was yesterday reported to have occurred on board the steam launch Sai Kung, formerly a ferry boat on the Hongkong-Sai Kung run, while the vessel was in Chinese waters during the early hours of the morning.

On the boat's return to Hongkong yesterday the coxswain reported that Ah Shing, a stoker was killed by an escape of steam resulting from the bursting of a steam pipe in the stoke hold. He was scalded to death.

There was no other casualty although the engine was also in the hold. The launch was at Tai Chan at the time.

day.—Yes, at noon. It was a long statement.

You say in the course of that statement you never mentioned about the girl Josephine?—I think I omitted that in my second statement.

His Worship: You think you had forgotten to tell the police in your statement on Saturday afternoon about the girl Josephine?—Yes. I think I left out a great deal.

The Public Prosecutor referred witness to the statement taken down by Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds on that Saturday and reminded witness that in that statement he had mentioned the girl.

Public Prosecutor: Do you mean to say that you forgot it on Friday and made it on Saturday?—Yes. On Saturday after I was reminded by the C.D.I. of the meeting of the girl, and it was for that I was detained.

Formal evidence was given by a room "boy" of the Nathan Hotel. He gave details of the bookings which were made by the deceased Fung and his lady friends.

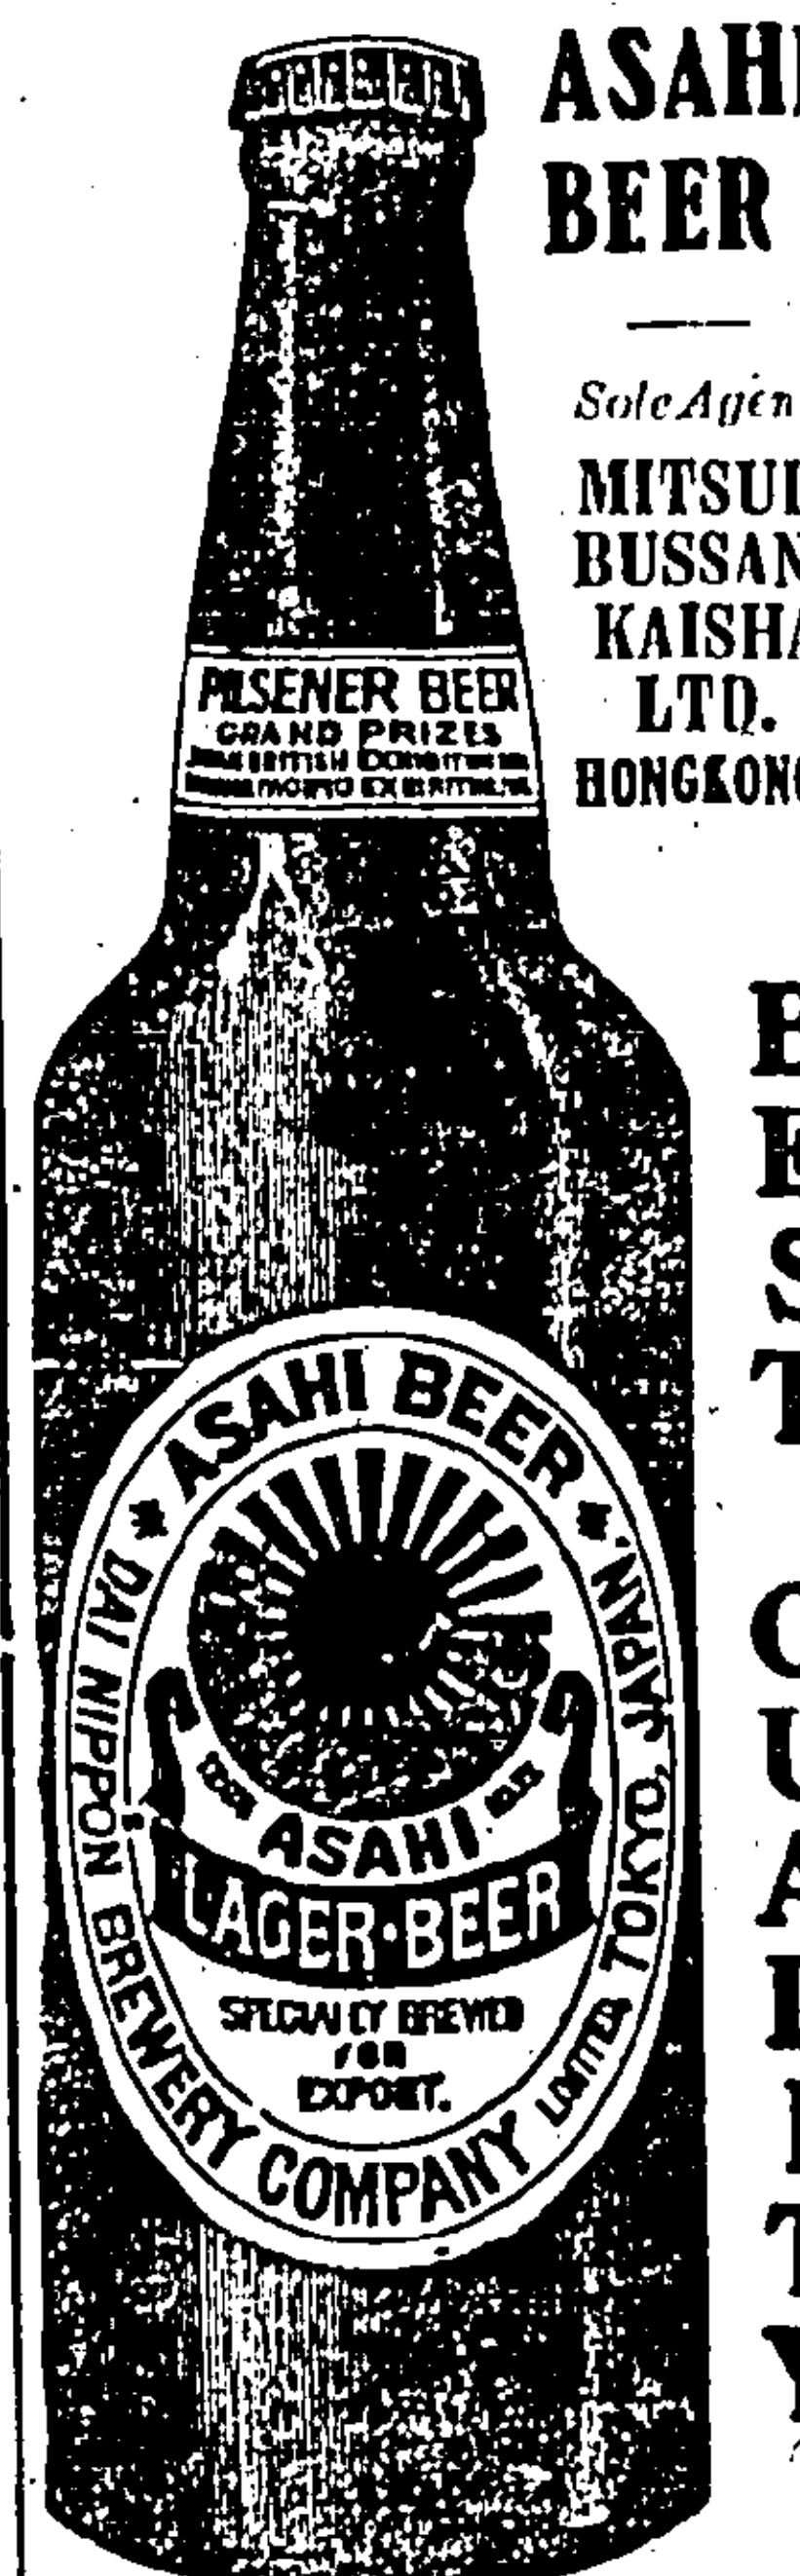

The further hearing was adjourned until this afternoon.
